

...it's still a bad color. I see this and see the glow that holds the light and dark together. These facilitate the transition or gradation of the light values to the dark values, and usually comprise the largest area of the painting. The best paintings have a distinguished pattern of mid-tone values. The mid-tones help create harmony in a painting, as opposed to light and dark values that create contrast.

Morning in Cape Porpoise
19 x 27" (45 x 69 cm)

I did this painting at a workshop demonstration in Cape Porpoise, Maine, to emphasize to my students the role of the mid-tones. The sky and shadows on the house were conceived as one connected mid-tone value. This declaration of a large mid-tone shape occurs early. The lights and darks are secondary. Blue is the dominant color.

My second method of painting involves light shapes with the appearance of being very light. I do not even use the pale yellow on the left hand I am usually inclined to use. It may be necessary to add darker values to create lightings as it happens with trees that have grown too dark, the water to show it is calm, the light of the sun, etc. The value range of the mid-tones is about 30 to 40 percent.

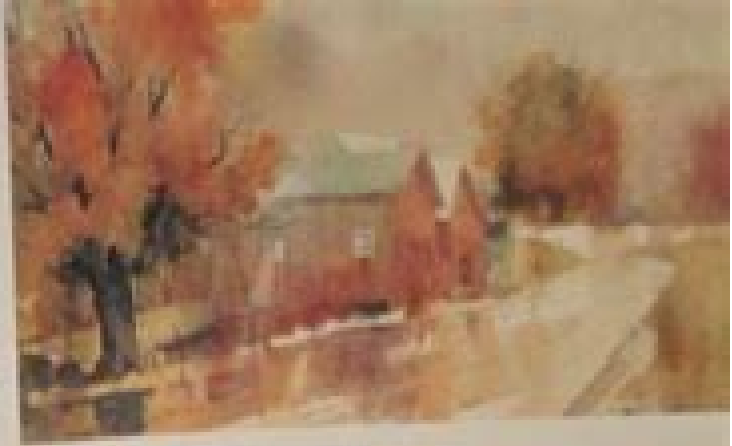

Winter Meadow
19 x 27" (45 x 69 cm)

The mid-tone values of the mid-tones on the windowsill frame and wall are the lights and darks of the scene, as the quiet mid-tone of the wall comes in with the stronger values of the room exterior.

...the mid-tones have been simplified.

The strength here is in the mid-tone values. The drama is in the mid-tone values, but it is the relationship to the mid-tones that makes it so strong. My greatest effort is always to establish the right chord in the mid-tones and their relationship to the lights and darks.

Church in Watfield, Vermont, 19 x 27" (45 x 69 cm)
