There has been much debate on the purposes and methods of assessment over the last couple of years This book gathers together the latest thinking and looks at how assessment can be used to promote or inhibit learning Unlike other books on the market this one summarizes theory and shows how it can be best put into practice using as little jargon as possible Some of the issues discussed in this text include how assessment can erode self esteem and motivation how skills of reflection self evaluation and personal target setting can impact on learning how far learners of all ages understand what they are required to learn how far students are able to evaluate their own performance and what schools can do in the short medium and long term to promote more effective learning Part of the What's In It For Schools series this book is ideal for teachers and other non academics concerned with education who require a grounding in the issue to help them in their daily work

Heteronormativity in a Rural School Community Catherine Thompson-Lee, 2017-04-18 This book presents an exploration of heteronormative discursive practices in the English countryside A lesbian teacher describes her experiences in the rural school community in which she lived and worked She prospered at the village school for almost ten years by censoring her sexuality and carefully managing the intersection between her private and professional identities However when a critical incident led to the exposure of her sexuality at school she learned the extent to which the rural school community privileged and protected the heteronormative discourse An autoethnographic method of inquiry provides intimate insight which is supported by external data including email and text message correspondence As the critical incident eventually became a police matter police records and evidence from the UK Crown Prosecution Service were sought for use in the research However the collection of these data proved problematic providing an unexpected development in the research and offering additional insight into the nature of rural life This research offers a vivid insider perspective on the experiences of a lesbian teacher in a rural school community It examines the incompatibility of private and professional identities investigates the moral panic that surrounds teacher sexuality in schools and considers the impact of homophobic and heteronormative discursive practices on health wellbeing and identity Crucially this research offers compelling insight into the steps that those in positions of power will take to protect and perpetuate the heteronormative discourse of rural life
