Abstract
 The purpose of this study was to examine the effect of a 12-week training program on the physical and psychological health of sedentary, middle-aged women. The program consisted of three sessions per week, each lasting 45 minutes. The first session was a warm-up, the second was a cardiovascular workout, and the third was a strength training session. The results showed that the women who participated in the program experienced significant improvements in their physical health, including increased cardiovascular fitness, muscle strength, and endurance. Additionally, the women reported improvements in their psychological health, including reduced stress, improved mood, and increased self-esteem. The findings of this study suggest that a 12-week training program can have a positive impact on the physical and psychological health of sedentary, middle-aged women.

The following table shows the results of the regression analysis for the dependent variable "Number of children in the household" (N = 1,000). The independent variables are "Age of the head of household" and "Gender of the head of household". The table includes the coefficient estimates, standard errors, t-statistics, and p-values for each variable.

Variable	Coefficient	Standard Error	t-statistic	p-value
Age of the head of household	0.001	0.001	1.2	0.23
Gender of the head of household (Male = 1, Female = 0)	-0.05	0.02	-2.5	0.01
Constant	1.5	0.1	15.0	0.00

The results indicate that the age of the head of household has a very small positive effect on the number of children in the household, while the gender of the head of household has a small negative effect. The constant term is significantly positive.
