Marketing Tourist Destinations in Emerging Economies Ishmael Mensah,Kandappan Balasubramanian,Mohd Raziff Jamaluddin,Gina Alcoriza,Vanessa Gaffar,S. Mostafa

Rasoolimanesh,2021-11-27 While tourism is a key economic generator for many countries emerging economies are confronted with additional challenges that those well established destinations in North America Australia and Europe normally don t have to contend with The potential for terrorism political unrest natural disasters accidents not to mention epidemics have the potential to derail tourism in emerging economies To mitigate these risks emerging destinations need well coordinated management and marketing strategies However most texts on tourism destination marketing reflect destinations in more advanced countries This book acknowledges the fact that emerging tourist destinations have unique characteristics and challenges which have implications for destination marketing Highlighting the marketing challenges best practices and strategies relevant to emerging economies this book covers core topics such as image creation and branding destination marketing during crises and pandemics market segmentation and the travel decision making process among others Providing up to date knowledge on an otherwise under explored topic this collection is ideal reading for upper level students researchers and policymakers

Modelling Destination Competitiveness Geoffrey Ian Crouch,2008 The aim of this study was to develop an insight into the importance and impact of the attributes which shape the competitiveness of tourism destinations Research since the early 1990s has gradually shed light on the nature and structure of destination competitiveness Some of this research has focussed on particular elements of destination competitiveness such as price competitiveness while other research has aimed at developing a more comprehensive understanding of destination competitiveness General theories of competitiveness have been assimilated and adapted and conceptual models of destination competitiveness have been developed which tailors these general ideas and theories to the particular characteristics of the tourism industry As a result destination competitiveness theory has developed to the point that empirical study is now possible and desirable In more recent years the conceptual models have been applied to analyse specific destinations or tourism markets But one of the most pressing research needs is to understand better the relative importance of the attributes of competitiveness Strategies for improving destination competitiveness must make decisions about where and how limited resources should be directed Therefore information which helps to identify which attributes are likely to influence competitiveness most effectively are of considerable value Publisher

Positioning of Destinations Tamara Mayerhofer,2010-05 Scientific Essay from the year 2010 in the subject Tourism University of Innsbruck Tourism Service Industry language English abstract This Paper focuses on the importance of strategic positioning of destinations and its stakeholders in a globalised competitive environment The theoretical background is based on the research on destinations and destination management strategic marketing strategy development and positioning strategies and positioning models A new theoretic framework from a RBV was developed to identify the most important elements of the successful positioning of destinations and its organizations from a stakeholder perspective An empirical study was applied to all stakeholders who form a destination by the example of three very successful positioned destinations in the Austrian Alps The theoretical model was tested by the application of frequency distribution and multiple linear regression analysis. Most of the points were confirmed but also a few rejected which asks for further research. However, the applied model gives a great insight in how stakeholders can successfully and sustainably position their organizations and the destination as a whole. It further can be used as a tool to find an efficient positioning strategy for young entrepreneurs or gives helpful advice for stagnating or decreasing businesses to formulate a new positioning strategy or aim for a relaunch.
