Toxic Childhood Stephanie Hargraves,2002-05-01 A child begins life trusting those who care for her needs when that trust is violated the effects are long term and devastating Life becomes one futile attempt after another to get it right Fear becomes the unseen force to battle and when impotent human coping methods fail magnifies into an obsessive compulsive nightmare Well into a third troubled marriage and having only a basic and new relationship with the Lord the desperate woman the child has become hears from the Holy Spirit that there is hope This is the true story of one woman s terrifying descent into a dark pit and the steps God led her through over several years out of that darkness and into His glorious light No matter the toxicity of His children s past God can stop its power over the present and most assuredly the future when we simply trust and obey

Overmedicated and Undertreated Steven Francesco,2015-07-23 The Children s Mental Health Industry like any other industry is built on stakeholders products and consumers and the institutional reach of drug makers is far deeper and wider than commonly understood The past twenty years in particular have seen tremendous distortion of the health care system s ultimate and intended mission to reduce suffering promote health and improve healthcare s outcomes via carefully considered scientifically based treatment While having made wonderful advances the pharmaceutical industry is guilty of rampant abuse in encouraging overmedication Between 2009 and 2014 major pharmaceutical manufacturers were fined more than 11 billion for illegal trade practices many involving the illegal promotion of off label drug use which is what killed my son I was surprised to learn that atypical antipsychotics as a drug class at 16 billion in annual sales are now second in sales only to cancer drugs Also many of the recipients are under eighteen years old a population for which many of these drugs have never received explicit FDA approval but they are prescribed at a doctor s discretion under a loosely structured methodology called off label prescribing During that same time due to the increasing dependence on medication there has been a dramatic reduction in other forms of therapy especially psychotherapy and counseling In fact there is an inverse relationship the more medication the less non medication approaches You would expect then that this trend would be supported by results indicating that our children are getting healthier The unfortunate fact however is just the opposite and will continue to worsen as long as the unjustified drug orientation continues to be eagerly supported by psychiatrists insurance companies drug companies as well as school systems I hope in writing Overmedicated and Undertreated and sharing my son s story there will be the emotional hook to help galvanize minds around this increasingly issue of over medication and under treatment This is a cautionary tale that serves as a powerful illustration of the damaging and deeply institutionalized conflicts of interest begging for reform in our toxic Children s Mental Health Industry Please go to OvermedicatedandUndertreated.com for more information What's Killing Our Kids? Des Bowman,2007 Many young children self harm and or take their own lives throughout the world today and many more adults do as well and it is usually due to events in their lives that occurred while they were kids Through telling my own story and sharing the experience of a few others may help to set others free of pain that could lead them down the wrong path This book also may help parents and loved ones of children see the signs of trouble in their kids before it is too late back cover
