The air vent has a replaceable filter attached to the underside of the lid. The purpose of the vent filter is to assist in trapping the microplastics to minimize the water used to maintain good venting control. If the microplastics are trapped primarily in the vent, the vent filter may still be cleaned; however, if the microplastics are trapped in areas where the water level is retained, the air vent filter will have little benefit. For the microplastics that the air vent has to be checked once a week and replaced if more than 1/2 of original thickness.
