The Uncertain Business Of Doing Good Outsiders In Africa:

The Uncertain Business of Doing Good Larry Krotz, 2008 In The Uncertain Business of Doing Good Larry Krotz explores the good intentions that underlie Westerners urge to help Africa focussing specifically on people involved in trying to end the Angolan civil war AIDS research and the UNIM circumcision research project in Kenya and the International Criminal Tribunal for Rwanda

The Uncertain Business of Doing Good Larry Krotz, 2012-09-02 The relationship between Westerners and Africa has long been conflicted and complicated Frequently exploitative it is also just as often propelled by an almost irresistible urge to do good The persistence of this impulse is intriguing From Doctor Livingstone 150 years ago to rock star Bono today outsiders have championed foreign intervention in Africa in political social economic and health care reforms But underlying all these good intentions isn't there a hierarchical belief that we as outsiders somehow know what's best for Africa As a journalist and documentary filmmaker Larry Krotz follows the projects of Canadian American British and European scientists NGOs lawyers and peacekeepers all motivated in some manner by the desire to do good in Africa In The Uncertain Business of Doing Good Outsiders in Africa he focuses specifically on people involved in trying to end the Angolan civil war AIDS research in Kenya the International Criminal Tribunal for Rwanda and the UNIM circumcision research project in Kenya Along with telling their stories he examines the ethical and social implications of humanitarian and research projects in Africa raising many difficult yet critically important questions How have we come to think the way we do about Africa and its people What has motivated us to action for good or ill And in the face of seemingly insurmountable odds is there a choice between doing nothing and doing the well intended but perhaps wrong thing

A Canadian Girl in South Africa E. Maud Graham, 2015-07-16 A Canadian woman shares her story of traveling to South Africa to teach Boer children in concentration camps following the South African War As the South African War reached its grueling end in 1902 colonial interests at the highest levels of the British Empire hand picked teachers from across the Commonwealth to teach the thousands of Boer children living in concentration camps Highly educated hard working and often opinionated E Maud Graham joined the Canadian contingent of forty teachers Her eyewitness account reveals the complexity of relations and tensions at a controversial period in the histories of both Britain and South Africa Graham presents a lively historical travel memoir and the editors have provided rich political and historical context to her narrative in the Introduction and generous annotations This is a rare primary source for experts in Colonial Studies Women s Studies and Canadian South African and British Imperial History Readers with an interest in the South African War will be intrigued by Graham s observations on South African society at the end of the Victorian era A fascinating perspective on the country Graham s account will help others understand how the British and English speaking Canadians in South Africa perceived Boers and native southern Africans at the turn of the twentieth century and her descriptions reveal details about everyday life in South Africa at an important moment of transition Graham s book represents the perspective of a well embedded outsider reporting to far removed readers rather than that of a female teacher involved in international or imperial education Benjamin Bryce Historical Studies in Education Recommended for those who wish to learn more about South African history and early race relations or tensions Graham s opinionated writing will amuse and interest those researching women s studies Amy L Crofford African Studies Quarterly Volume 16

Attuned Leadership
 Reuel Khoza, 2012-10-01 Leaders are not just born to the role They are born then made and sometimes unmade by their own actions A leader who is not attuned to his or her followers soon becomes a leader in limbo and invariably then fails

Connectedness compassion empathy integrity humility reasonableness and a determination to be effective are the keys to attuned leadership An attuned leader can step boldly into an uncertain future with the certainty that followers will lend their support In this richly reflective discussion of leadership and transformation the author provides a guide to what constitutes ethical leadership in local and global contexts for business politics and government In a world where tyrants abound in corporations and in states Attuned Leadership provides a compass for the direction of ethical leadership Central to this perspective is that the philosophical traditions of Africa offer an important contribution to the theory and practice of leadership in the world today African humanism or Ubuntu evokes both reason and empathy as the basis for ethical leadership Ubuntu articulated in the Zulu proverb Umuntu Ngumuntu Ngabantu means that a person is a person because of other people The author contends that the reciprocal relationship between the individual and the social collective stimulates caring and progressive thought and action Nowhere is this more apt than in the relationship between leader and followers

A Year of Living Generously Lawrence Scanlan, 2010-05-01 A Year of Living Generously follows award winning journalist Lawrence Scanlan as he volunteers with 12 different charities among them well known institutions Habitat for Humanity the St Vincent de Paul Society and Canadian Crossroads Drawing from first hand experiences serving in a soup kitchen in Ontario building houses in post Katrina New Orleans and teaching at a women s radio station in Senegal Scanlan tests the ideas and theories on global aid and philanthropy and makes a compelling case for greater commitment and real connection from us all The result is an engaging yet informative primer for today s volunteers young and old who are looking to make a meaningful contribution

Trapped by Tourism Larry Krotz, 2024-10-15 Travel was once a way in which the world changed us Now it is a way in which we change the world Twenty five years ago two things made mass tourism possible cheap air travel and the credit card The world has come a long way since then and very quickly from the need for either travel agents or traveler s checks From the now vast cruise ship industry to a myriad of niche areas such as do good tourism self improvement tourism sex tourism and adventure tourism travel as an industry and an activity reaches into corners and has developed on scales not hitherto imagined In Trapped by Tourism Sustainability Questions for a World Fueled by Travelers Larry Krotz explores the tensions that formed with the rise of mass tourism focusing on what travelers want vs what travelers do and the sustainability of tourism itself both as it plays out in economies and as a factor impacting natural and cultural environments We will never shut down tourism We are destined to have it and to participate in it But what truly are its implications for the world we live in If communities and governments seek economic benefits they must also look at the trade offs commodification of cultures economic unfairness environmental stresses and much more By delving into examples ranging from the wine industry to Indigenous communities Krotz looks at how what we do and how we do it affects important corners of the world and how awareness has developed about steering the impacts in ways that work for everybody Trapped by Tourism takes readers around the world to locations such as the old cities of Europe Indigenous communities in North America and Africa wine growing regions in Canada the island of Cuba and Cathedral towns in England places where tourism as an economic driver come up against environmental or cultural forces that push in exactly the opposite direction creating tensions within today's mass tourism The result is a thoughtful and provocative framework that encourages readers and travelers alike to consider an ever growing component of our culture the way we travel and the impact we leave behind

Africa's Private Sector Vijaya Ramachandran, Alan H. Gelb, 2009 Why is the private sector yet to take off in much sub Saharan Africa Drawing on a unique set of enterprise surveys Vijaya Ramachandran and her co authors identify the biggest obstacles inadequate infrastructure especially unreliable electricity and crumbling roads and burdensome regulation They then show how ethnic minorities dominate the private sector in many countries inhibiting competition and demands for a better business environment and thus impeding the emergence of an entrepreneurial middle class Based on this careful diagnosis the authors suggest investing in infrastructure and reforming regulation to lower the cost of doing business and increasing the access to education of a broader based business class that crosses ethnic divides Book jacket

Changing South Africa Sam C. Nolutshungu, 1982 Bondage of Boundaries and Identity Politics in Postcolonial Africa Ndlovu-Gatsheni, Sabelo J., Mhlanga, Brilliant, 2013-10-20 What has confounded African efforts to create cohesive prosperous and just states in postcolonial Africa What has been the long term impact of the Berlin Conference of 1884 5 on African unity and African statehood Why is postcolonial Africa haunted by various ethno national conflicts Is secession and irredentism the solution Can we talk of ethno futures for Africa These are the kinds of fundamental questions that this important book addresses Sabelo J Ndlovu Gatsheni and Brilliant Mhlanga s book introduces the metaphor of the northern problem to dramatise the fact that there is no major African postcolonial state that does not enclose within its borders a disgruntled minority that is complaining of marginalization domination and suppression The irony is that in 1963 at the formation of the OAU postcolonial African leaders embraced the boundaries arbitrarily drawn by European colonialists and institutionalised the principle of inviolability of bondage of boundaries thereby contributing to the problem of ethno national conflicts The successful struggle for independence of the Eritrean people and the secession of South Sudan in 2011 have encouraged other dominated and marginalised groups throughout Africa to view secession as an option Ndlovu Gatsheni and Mhlanga successfully assembled competent African scholars to deal exhaustively with various empirical cases of ethno national conflicts throughout the African continent as well as engaging with such pertinent issues as Pan Africanism as a panacea to these problems This important book delves deeper into complex issues of space languages conflict security nation building war on terror secession migration citizenship militias liberation violence and Pan Africanism
