Lewis, 2019-10-01

Offers a glimpse of the future of vanishing shorelines in America in the age of climate change where the wealthy will be able to remain the longest while the poor will be forced to leave Journalist Andrew Lewis chronicles the struggle of his New Jersey hometown to rebuild their ravaged homes in the face of the same environmental stresses and governmental neglect that are endangering coastal areas throughout the United States Lewis grew up on the Bayshore a 40 mile stretch of Delaware Bay beaches marshland and fishing hamlets at the southern end of New Jersey whose working class community is fighting to retain their place in a country that has left them behind The Bayshore like so many rural places in the US is under immense pressure from a combination of severe economic decline industry loss and regulation But it is also contending with one of the fastest rates of sea level rise on the planet and the aftereffects of one of the most destructive hurricanes in American history Superstorm Sandy If in the years prior to Sandy the Bayshore had already been slowly disappearing its beaches eroding and lowland cedar woods hollowing out into saltwater bleached ghost forests after the hurricane the community was decimated Today homes and roads and memories are crumbling into the rising bay Cumberland the poor rural county where the Bayshore is located had been left out of the bulk of the initial federal disaster relief package post Sandy Instead of money to rebuild the Bayshore got the New Jersey Department of Environmental Protection s Superstorm Sandy Blue Acres Program which identified and purchased flood prone neighborhoods where working class citizens lived then demolished them to be converted to open space The Drowning of Money Island is an intimate yet unbiased lyrical yet investigative portrait of a rural community ravaged by sea level rise and economic hardship as well as the increasingly divisive politics those factors have helped spawn It invites us to confront how climate change is already intensifying preexisting inequality Design History

Beyond the Canon Jennifer Kaufmann-Buhler, Victoria Rose Pass, Christopher Wilson, 2019-02-07 Design History Beyond the Canon subverts hierarchies of taste which have dominated traditional narratives of design history The book explores a diverse selection of objects spaces and media ranging from high design to mass produced and mass marketed objects as well as counter cultural and sub cultural material The authors research highlights the often marginalised role of gender and racial identity in the production and consumption of design the politics which underpins design practice and the role of designed objects as pathways of nostalgia and cultural memory While focused primarily on North American examples from the early 20th century onwards this collection also features essays examining European and Soviet design history as well as the influence of Asia and Africa on Western design practice The book is organised in three thematic sections Consumers Intermediaries and Designers The first section analyses a range of designed objects and spaces through the experiences and perspectives of users The second section considers intermediaries from both technology and cultural industries as well as the hidden labour within the design process itself The final section focuses on designers from multiple design disciplines including high fashion industrial design interior design graphic design and design history pedagogy The essays in all three sections utilise different research methods and a wide range of theoretical approaches including feminist theory critical race theory spatial theory material culture studies science and technology studies and art history Design History Beyond the Canon brings together the most recent research which stretches beyond the traditional canon and looks to interdisciplinary methodologies to better understand the practice and consumption of design
