At an abstract level, this theory construes the intellectual functions of humans and computers as respectively restricted and directed forms of the logic of implication. In other words, human intelligence operates according to production rules. Here Wagman presents the central tenets and research elaboration of the general unified theory of intelligence that embraces both human and artificial intelligence across the cognitive domains of scientific discovery, processes inductive and deductive reasoning, and the mechanisms basic to analogical thinking and problem solving. M. Underwood, 2005 Whether reading, looking at a picture, or driving, how is it that we know where to look next? How does the human visual system calculate where our gaze should be directed in order to achieve our cognitive aims? This book brings together leading vision scientists studying eye movements across a range of activities such as reading, driving, computer activities, and chess. It provides groundbreaking new research that will help us understand how it is that we know where to move our eyes and thereby better understand the cognitive processes underlying these activities. Motor Learning Richard A.
