The Soul of a Folklorist Ann K. Ferrell, Diane E. Goldstein, 2026-01-06 In the 1960s 70s and 80s the US saw a growing awareness of representational politics following the civil rights women's gay and lesbian anti war and environmental justice movements and like most fields folklore became increasingly cognizant of these cultural and political shifts The Soul of a Folklorist chronicles the growing pains folklorists felt as the field engaged in these new and different ways of thinking about expressive culture inequality and political representation Grounded in primary sources including archival documents and interviews with members of the field authors Ann K Ferrell and Diane E Goldstein examine the discussions that arose during this period among folklore scholars Some folklorists explored progressive social change initiatives as part of their professional work while others questioned the scholarly appropriateness of applied or political engagement at times challenging this professional engagement in contemporary political issues In a series of case studies from the 1970s and 80s Ferrell and Goldstein explore how folklorists navigated questions about inequities that existed within the field and the potential adverse effects of those inequities on what and whom they studied the push and pull of scholarly and public folklore work the location of the line between research and advocacy as well as the wisdom of crossing that line and the nature of our responsibility as individual folklorists and as a field to those we study and the communities in which we live and work The Soul of a Folklorist examines how as folklorists moved toward a perspective that increasingly explored the responsibility of presentation and representation of gender race class and other areas of inequities the discipline gradually came to understand both the power of its own subject and structures of subordination within the field
