Stepping Away from the Silos Margaret Coutts,2016-11-10 For over twenty years digitisation has been a core element of the modern information landscape The digital lifecycle is now well defined and standards and good practice have been developed for most of its key stages There remains however a widespread lack of coordination of digitisation initiatives both within and across different sectors and there are disparate approaches to selection criteria The result is silos of digitised content Stepping away from the Silos examines the strategic context in the UK since the 1990s and its effect on collaboration and coordination of exemplar digitisation initiatives in higher education and related sectors It identifies the principal criteria for content selection that are common to the international literature in this field The outputs of the exemplar projects are examined in relation to these criteria A range of common practices and patterns in content selection appears to have developed over time forming a de facto strategy from which several areas of critical mass have emerged The book discusses the potential to improve strategic collaboration and coordinated selection by building on such a platform and considers planning options in the context of work on national digitisation strategies in the UK and internationally Summarises the rise of publicly funded digitisation in the UK from the 1990s to date and identifies the need to improve coordination and content selection criteria Reviews the role of digitisation in government and organisational strategies from the 1990s to the present day Examines the strategic position of collaboration within and across different organisations Identifies common selection criteria and outlines the coverage of exemplar projects Discusses the apparent emergence of a de facto selection strategy and the potential for national strategic planning of digitised content based on existing outputs and improved collaboration

Organization, Representation and Description through the Digital Age Christine M. Angel, Caroline Fuchs, 2018-03-05 Cataloging standards practiced within the traditional library archive and museum environments are not interoperable for the retrieval of objects within the shared online environment Within today's information environments library archive and museum professionals are becoming aware that all information objects can be linked together In this way information professionals have the opportunity to collaborate and share data together with the shared online cataloging environment the end result being improved retrieval effectiveness But the adaptation has been slow Libraries archives and museums are still operating within their own community specific cataloging practices This book provides a historical perspective of the evolution of linking devices within the library archive and museums environments and captures current cataloging practices in these fields It offers suggestions for moving beyond community specific cataloging principles and thus has the potential of becoming a springboard for further conversation and the sharing of ideas
