Twentieth-Century Roots of Rhetorical Studies Jim A. Kuypers, Andrew King, 2001-03-30 Kuypers King and their contributors explore the conception of rhetoric of eleven key American rhetoricians through analyses of their life s work Each chapter provides a sense of that scholar s conception of rhetoric be it through criticism theory or teaching The communication discipline often highlights the work of others outside the discipline however it rarely acclaims the work of its own critics teachers and theorists In this collection the essays explore the innate mode of perception that guided the rhetorical understanding of the early critics In so doing this work dispels the myth that the discipline of Speech Communication was spawned from a monolithic and rigid center that came to be called neo Aristotelianism Scholars and researchers involved with the history of rhetoric rhetorical criticism and theory and American public address uill find this title to be a necessary addition to their collection Spectra ,2001 Twentieth-century Roots of Rhetorical Studies

Jim A. Kuypers, Andrew King, Presidential Crisis Rhetoric and the Press in the Post-Cold War World Jim A. Kuypers, 1997-08-26 Kuypers combines rhetorical theory and framing analysis in an examination of the interaction of the press and the president during international crisis situations in the post Cold War world Three crises are examined Bosnia Haiti and the North Korean nuclear capability issue Kuypers effectively demonstrates the changed nature of presidential crisis rhetoric since the end of the Cold War Kuypers employs a new historical critical approach to analyze both the press and the Clinton administration s handling of three international crisis situations Using case studies of Bosnia Haiti and the alleged North Korean nuclear buildup in 1993 he examines contemporary presidential crisis communication and the agenda setting and agenda extension functions of the press The importance of this study lies in its timeliness President Clinton is the first atomic age president not to have the Cold War meta narrative to use in legitimating international crises Prior studies in presidential crisis rhetoric found that the president received broad and consistent support during times of crisis Kuypers found that the press often advanced an oppositional frame to that used by the Clinton administration The press frames were found to limit the options of the President even when the press supported a particular presidential strategy This is a major study that will be of interest to scholars and researchers of the press the modern presidency and American foreign policy

Press Bias and Politics Jim A. Kuypers, 2002-09-30 Kuypers charts the potential effects the printed presses and broadcast media have upon the messages of political and social leaders when they discuss controversial issues Examining over 800 press reports on race and homosexuality from 116 different newspapers Kuypers meticulously documents a liberal political bias in mainstream news This book asserts that such a bias hurts the democratic process by ignoring non mainstream left positions and vilifying many moderate and most right leaning positions leaving only a narrow brand of liberal thought supported by the mainstream press This book argues that the mainstream press in America is an anti democratic institution By comparatively analyzing press reports as well as the events that occasioned the coverage Kuypers paints a detailed picture of the politics of the American press He advances four distinct reportorial practices that inject bias into reporting offering perspectives of particular interest to scholars students and others involved with mass communication journalism and politics in the United States Twentieth Century Sophistries Michael Young, 2024 Twentieth Century Sophistries ventures the study of rhetorical education in American popular culture on the basis of an institutional analogy with the sophists of antiquity To wit the commercial sale of techniques for speech power generates a social configuration that shapes decisively both the form and content of rhetorical pedagogy This configuration not only evokes perennial problems of speech and writing education it also continues to shape American rhetorical culture moreover it has played a significant role in the development of Rhetorical Studies as a discipline in the modern academy This dissertation offers an interpretation of that role through a sequence of three historical episodes in which the institutional trajectories of popular programs of rhetorical education intersected with disciplinary rhetoric The first reads the divergence of popular from academic rhetoric from their common roots in elocutionism though the story of a little known conflict early in Speech Communication s history The second documents the midcentury reconvergence of commercial and disciplinary rhetoric in the paradigms of communication education and General Semantics The third demonstrates the salience of modern sophistic enterprise to American history by showing how competition among schools of rhetorical education defined counter revolutionary politics in the 70s through the early 90s The twin goals of this history are to 1 theorize and historicize the complex relationship of Rhetorical Studies to its pop culture analogues and 2 draw out the significance of that relationship for the present and future of rhetorical education
