The Soul Of A New Machine Modern Library:

The Soul of a New Machine Tracy Kidder, 1997 With the touch of an expert thriller writer Tracy Kidder recounts the feverish efforts of a team of Data General researchers to create a new 32 bit superminicomputer From publisher description

Designing Embedded Processors Jörg Henkel, Sri Parameswaran, 2007-07-27 As we embrace the world of personal portable and perplexingly complex digital systems it has befallen upon the bewildered designer to take advantage of the available transistors to produce a system which is small fast cheap and correct yet possesses increased functionality Increasingly these systems have to consume little energy Designers are increasingly turning towards small processors which are low power and customize these processors both in software and hardware to achieve their objectives of a low power system which is verified and has short design turnaround times Designing Embedded Processors examines the many ways in which processor based systems are designed to allow low power devices It looks at processor design methods memory optimization dynamic voltage scaling methods compiler methods and multi processor methods Each section has an introductory chapter to give a breadth view and have a few specialist chapters in the area to give a deeper perspective The book provides a good starting point to engineers in the area and to research students embarking upon the exciting area of embedded systems and architectures

The Problem with Software Adam Barr, 2018-10-23 An industry insider explains why there is so much bad software and why academia doesn't teach programmers what industry wants them to know Why is software so prone to bugs So vulnerable to viruses Why are software products so often delayed or even canceled Is software development really hard or are software developers just not that good at it In The Problem with Software Adam Barr examines the proliferation of bad software explains what causes it and offers some suggestions on how to improve the situation For one thing Barr points out academia doesn't teach programmers what they actually need to know to do their jobs how to work in a team to create code that works reliably and can be maintained by somebody other than the original authors As the size and complexity of commercial software have grown the gap between academic computer science and industry has widened It's an open secret that there is little engineering in software engineering which continues to rely not on codified scientific knowledge but on intuition and experience Barr who worked as a programmer for more than twenty years describes how the industry has evolved from the era of mainframes and Fortran to today's embrace of the cloud He explains bugs and why software has so many of them and why today's interconnected computers offer fertile ground for viruses and worms The difference between good and bad software can be a single line of code and Barr includes code to illustrate the consequences of seemingly inconsequential choices by programmers Looking to the future Barr writes that the best prospect for improving software engineering is the move to the cloud When software is a service and not a product companies will have more incentive to make it good rather than good enough to ship

Living Into Leadership Bowen H. McCoy, 2007 A Journey in Ethics is a testimonial to living an engaged yet balanced business life and sustaining your core values

Managing New Industry Creation Thomas Murtha, Stefanie Lenway, Jeffrey Hart, 2002-11-01 This book concerns industry creation as knowledge creation. The authors argue that a new class of global knowledge driven manufacturing industries has emerged in which learning continuity and speed define competition. In these new industries access to knowledge creation processes matters more than ownership of physical assets. Location matters only insofar as it confers learning advantages and market access. Companies need strategies that can mobilize their organizations' country specific strengths and freely leverage them in open global learning partnerships with allies, suppliers and customers. Managing New Industry Creation distills principles that managers can use to seize leadership for their companies as these new industries emerge. The authors draw their insights from firsthand discussions with over 160 managers and scientists who helped found the high information content flat panel display (FPD) industry. In the early 1990s large format FPDs exploded into public knowledge as a critical enabling technology for notebook computers. In the future FPDs will increasingly function as the face by which users interact with technology products. The book recounts the business decisions that propelled the industry from humble beginnings to empower a globally mobile workforce and eventually build wall hanging high definition televisions that every household can afford. The FPD industry was the first new manufacturing industry to fully emerge in a global economy defined more by trade in knowledge than in physical products. Although FPDs were commercialized in Japan, the joint efforts of an international community of companies made high volume production of large displays viable. Companies from outside of Japan including IBM, Applied Materials and Corning achieved key positions by challenging U.S. centered preconceptions of innovation, new business creation and management process, giving unprecedented global authority and responsibility to their Japanese affiliates. Their success established new rules for competing in the knowledge driven global manufacturing industries of the future first described here for managers, R & D scientists, academics and students of corporate strategy.

A to Z of Computer Scientists, Updated Edition Harry Henderson, 2020-01-01 Praise for the previous edition: Entries are written with enough clarity and simplicity to appeal to general audiences. The additional readings that end each profile give excellent pointers for more detailed information. Recommended Choice. This well written collection of biographies of the most important contributors to the computer world is a valuable resource for those interested in the men and women who were instrumental in making the world we live in today. This is a recommended purchase for reference collections. American Reference Books Annual: this one is recommended for high school, public and undergraduate libraries. Booklist: The significant role that the computer plays in the business world, schools and homes speaks to the impact it has on our daily lives. While many people are familiar with the Internet, online shopping and basic computer technology, the scientists who pioneered this digital age are generally less well known. A to Z of Computer Scientists, Updated Edition features 136 computer pioneers and shows the ways in which these individuals developed their ideas, overcame technical and institutional challenges, collaborated with colleagues and created products or institutions of lasting importance. The cutting edge contemporary entries explore a

The Autonomous System Szabolcs Michael de Gyurky, Mark A. Tarbell, 2013-10-08 The Fundamental Science in Computer Science Is the Science of Thought For the first time the collective genius of the great 18th century German cognitive philosopher scientists Immanuel Kant Georg Wilhelm Friedrich Hegel and Arthur Schopenhauer have been integrated into modern 21st century computer science In contrast to the languishing mainstream of Artificial Intelligence this book takes the human thought system as its model resulting in an entirely different approach This book presents the architecture of a thoroughly and broadly educated human mind as translated into modern software engineering design terms The result is The Autonomous System based on dynamic logic and the architecture of the human mind With its human like intelligence it is capable of rational thought reasoning and an understanding of itself and its tasks A system of thoughts must always have an architectural structure Arthur Schopenhauer The World as Will and Presentation

Britain and the Narration of Travel in the Nineteenth Century Kate Hill, 2017-05-15 Interrogating the multiple ways in which travel was narrated and mediated by and in response to nineteenth century British travelers this interdisciplinary collection examines to what extent these accounts drew on and developed existing tropes of travel The three sections take up personal and intimate narratives that were not necessarily designed for public consumption tales intended for a popular audience and accounts that were more clearly linked with discourses and institutions of power such as imperial processes of conquest and governance Some narratives focus on the things the travelers carried such as souvenirs from the battlefields of Britain s imperial wars while others show the complexity of Victorian dreams of the exotic Still others offer a disapproving glimpse of Victorian mores through the eyes of indigenous peoples in contrast to the imperialist vision of British explorers Swiss hotel registers guest books and guidebooks offer insights into the history of tourism while new photographic technologies the development of the telegraph system and train travel transformed the visual audial and even the conjugal experience of travel The contributors attend to issues of gender and ethnicity in essays on women travelers South African travel narratives and accounts of China during the Opium Wars and analyze the influence of fictional travel narratives Taken together these essays show how these multiple narratives circulated cross fertilised and reacted to one another to produce new narratives new objects and new modes of travel
