

THE STORY OF MY LIFE BY HELEN KELLER DETAILED SUMMARY

Chapter 1

Helen's apprehension before writing her autobiography

Helen felt a kind of hesitation before she set on the task of penning down her autobiography and, thus, reveal the story of her life. In addition, the task itself was a difficult one for Helen: looking back, she could hardly distinguish between the facts and the fancies across the years. Furthermore, in the process of learning new things, she had forgotten many important incidents and experiences of her childhood.

Birth of Helen

Helen Adams Keller was born on a plantation called Ivy Green in Tuscumbia, Alabama, on June 27, 1880. She was the eldest daughter of Captain Arthur H. Keller, a former officer of the Confederate Army, and Kate Adams. Helen was named after her grandmother, Helen Everett. Even as an infant, she showed signs of eagerness and independence. By the age of six months, Helen attracted everyone's attention piping out words like "How d'ye" and "tea".

Helen suffers an illness that leaves her deaf and blind

In February, 1882, at the age of nineteen months, Helen fell ill with "an acute congestion of the stomach and brain", which could possibly have been scarlet fever or meningitis. This illness left her deaf and blind. Later on, her spirit was liberated from the "world of silence and darkness" by her teacher, Anne Sullivan.

Chapter 2

Helen's initial attempts to communicate

After her sickness, Helen started using "crude signs" to communicate with others. A shake of the head meant "No" and a nod "Yes", a pull meant "Come" and a push, "Go". If she wanted anything, she would imitate the relevant action. Her mother encouraged her by involving her in the household activities. This made Helen more observant of the actions performed by the people around her.

Observing herself as different from others

Helen started to observe that unlike her, other people did not use signs for communication but talked with their mouths. She realized that she was different from others. She attempted to copy them but in vain. At times, she released her frustration on her nurse, Elisa, by kicking and screaming at her until she

1896 she began her studies at the Cambridge School for Young Ladies in Massachusetts which would prepare her to eventually attend Radcliffe College the women s college affiliated with Harvard University This was her first time attending school with girls who could see or hear rather than other students who were also deaf or blind British Books ,1914
