The Seductiveness of Virtue John J. Fitzgerald, 2016-12-15 John J Fitzgerald addresses here one of life's enduring questions how to achieve personal fulfillment and more specifically whether we can do so through ethical conduct He focuses on two significant twentieth century theologians Rabbi Abraham Joshua Heschel and Pope John Paul II seeing both as fitting dialogue partners given the former's influence on the Second Vatican Council's deliberations on the Jews and the latter's groundbreaking overtures to the Jews in the wake of his experiences in Poland before and during World War II Fitzgerald demonstrates that Heschel and John Paul II both suggest that doing good generally leads us to growth in various components of personal fulfillment such as happiness meaning in life and freedom from selfish desires There are however some key differences between the two theologians John Paul II emphasizes more strongly the relationship between acting well and attaining eternal life whereas Heschel wrestles more openly with the possibility that religious commitment ultimately involves anxiety and sadness By examining historical and contemporary analyses including the work of the Fourteenth Dalai Lama the philosopher Peter Singer and some present day psychologists Fitzgerald builds a narrative that shows the promise and limits of Heschel's and John Paul II's views

Everyday Ethics Michael Lamb, Brian A. Williams, 2019-10-01 What might we learn if the study of ethics focused less on hard cases and more on the practices of everyday life In Everyday Ethics Michael Lamb and Brian Williams gather some of the world's leading scholars and practitioners of moral theology including some GUP authors to explore that question in dialogue with anthropology and the social sciences Inspired by the work of Michael Banner these scholars cross disciplinary boundaries to analyze the ethics of ordinary practices from eating learning and loving thy neighbor to borrowing and spending using technology and working in a flexible economy Along the way they consider the moral and methodological questions that emerge from this interdisciplinary dialogue and assess the implications for the future of moral theology

Evolution Science and Ethics in the Third Millennium Robert Cliquet, Dragana Avramov, 2018-01-10 The book aims to revitalise the interdisciplinary debate about evolutionary ethics and substantiate the idea that evolution science can provide a rational and robust framework for understanding morality It also traces pathways for knowledge based choices to be made about directions for future long term biological evolution and cultural development in view of adaptation to the expected probable and possible future and the ecological sustainability of our planetary environment The authors discuss ethical challenges associated with the major biosocial sources of human variation individual variation inter personal variation inter group variation and inter generational variation This book approaches the long term challenges of the human species in a holistic way Researchers will find an extensive discussion of the key theoretical scientific aspects of the relationship between evolution and morality Policy makers will find information that can help them better understand from where we are coming and inspire them to make choices and take actions in a longer term perspective The general public will find food for thoughts
