Urban Soils Andrew W. Rate, 2022-01-07 This textbook addresses the increasing trend in urbanization of the world's population and its relation with urban soils Written by active practitioners of university level teaching and research this book is designed primarily as an educational text while it also provides readers with an authoritative gateway to the primary literature It includes explicit coverage of spatial and statistical multivariate techniques and case studies to illustrate key concept and to support practical guidance in issues such as data collection and analysis The authors reflect current developments in research and urban trends In China for example the proportion of the population living in cities increased from 13% in 1950 to 45% in 2010 World Bank data Australia is one of the world's top ten urbanised countries with population greater than ten million with approximately 90% of its population living in cities mainly along Australia's coast The most rapidly urbanising populations are currently in nations of the African continent Soils in urban areas have multiple functions which are becoming more valued by urban communities soils supply water nutrients and physical support for urban plant and animal communities parks reserves gardens and are becoming increasingly valued for growing food Soils may be used for building foundations or as building materials themselves Urban hydrology relies on the existence of unsealed soils for aquifer protection and flood control This volume presents the importance of urban ecosystems and the impacts of global change It examines pedogenesis of urban soils natural materials affected by urban phenomena and natural processes acting on urban materials including an examination of different climatic zones There is a focus on soils formed on landfill reclaimed land dredge spoils as well as soil related changes in urban geomorphology There is plenty of discussion on urban soil as a source and sink as well as soil geochemistry and health The book is intended primarily as a text for upper level undergraduate and postgraduate Masters students It will also be invaluable as a resource for professionals such as researchers environmental regulators and environmental consultants

Resourcing an Agroecological Urbanism Chiara Tornaghi, Michiel

Dehaene, 2021-03-07 Foregrounding an innovative and radical perspective on food planning this book makes the case for an agroecological urbanism in which food is a key component in the reinvention of new and just social arrangements and ecological practices Building on state of the art and participatory research on farming urbanism food policy and advocacy in the field of food system transformation this book changes the way food planning has been conceptualised to date and invites the reader to fully embrace the transformative potential of an agroecological perspective Bringing in dialogue from both the rural and urban the producer and consumer this book challenges conventional approaches that see them as separate spheres whose problems can only be solved by a reconnection Instead it argues for moving away from a food in the city approach towards an urbanism perspective in which the economic and spatial processes that currently drive urbanisation will be unpacked and dissected and new strategies for changing those processes into more equal and just ones are put forward Drawing on the nascent field of urban political agroecology this text brings together i theoretical reconceptualisations of urbanism in relation to food planning and the emergence of new agrarian questions ii critical analysis of experimental methodologies and performing arts for public dialogue reflexivity and food sovereignty research iii experiences of resourceful land management including urban land use and land tenure change and iv theoretical and practical exploration of post capitalist economics that bring consumers and producers together to make the case for an agroecological urbanism Aimed at advanced students and academics in agroecology sustainable food planning urban geography urban planning and critical food studies this book will also be of interest to professionals and activists working with food systems in both the Global
