the 1990s, the number of people who have been infected with HIV has increased significantly. In 1990, there were about 1 million people living with HIV in the United States. By 2000, that number had risen to about 4 million. And in 2008, there were about 12 million people living with HIV in the United States. This is a dramatic increase, and it is a reflection of the fact that HIV is a very contagious virus. It can be spread through sexual contact, blood, and breast milk. And it can be spread from a mother to her child during pregnancy or childbirth. HIV is a very serious disease, and it can lead to AIDS, which is a life-threatening condition. But there are ways to prevent HIV, and there are ways to live with HIV. If you are at risk of getting HIV, you should talk to your doctor about getting tested. And if you are living with HIV, you should talk to your doctor about taking medication to keep your virus under control. This can help you live a longer, healthier life.
