THE SCRAMBLE FOR AFRICA AND THE BUILD UP TO A THIRD WORLD WAR: CHANGING POWER PATTERNS AT THE GLOBAL LEVEL AND LESSONS FOR AFRICA

Abstract

The aim of this journal was to analyze the current global war events and how they are set to change power patterns at the global level and its impact and lessons for Africa. The assumption of this study was that these reckless wars in the 21st century are set to reshape the global world order and lead to either African renaissance or recolonisation. The objectives of the study were, to account for the global hostilities, to project possible outcomes, and to come up with a solution to the identified challenges. The study relied on both primary and secondary data sets. The findings of the study were that, that the US Dollar will cease to be a global currency and that there is going to be a new alternative international payment system, the UNSC will die and the five permanent member states principle dies vindicating Mugabeism, that Russia will rely on nuclear threats for its survival, the trade war between China and USA has put China at the center of the USA's countervailing strategies, that part of the USA's countervailing strategy is targeting the BRICS (Brazil, Russia, India, China, and South Africa), that the USA and Russia despite their own differences are uncomfortable with the sudden surge of China as this threatens the historical racial hierarchy that has been dominated by whites, that China has been burdened with externally orchestrated convulsions in Hong Kong, arms sales to Taiwan, Tibet cessation led Daila Lama, alleged human rights against the minority Muslims in North-West China, and bellicose statements targeting China's intentions within its region, and that Afrophobia marks the end of regional African bodies especially SADC and revolutionary parties. The poor performance of the South African economy (29 percent unemployment rate) is a dangling sword in the hands of the white business sector. The study recommends that South Africa must kill the tribe as prescribed by Samora Machael who stated that for a nation-state to live the tribe must die, the USA must avoid the Hitler approach of creating so many wars, Africa must not jump to award resources to the foreigners, Africa must ringfence its resources from external exploitation, there will be more coups in Africa as the level of disgruntlement has risen alarmingly and Africa must not just 'hope' as a strategy for survival.

Introduction

Sherman Kent the godfather of strategic intelligence states that powerful countries use strategic intelligence to shape and control the future. The countries are investing in technology, intelligence acquisition, and analysis to improve reliability and the credibility of the intelligence gathered. This has seen countries invest in digital intelligence, artificial intelligence, and geo-information surveys to predict and control future events. The 5th generation of technology has seen developed countries moving towards digital security and technology shaping global events. Unfortunately, in Africa,
