Task 11

What three communication processes are present when the family goes to church and what effects, if any, are having on them?

1. Spoken Communication: During the church service, language is used to convey religious principles, moral teachings, and community values. This spoken communication is essential for conveying the church's mission and for fostering a sense of unity among the congregation.
2. Written Communication: Church documents, such as hymnals, prayer books, and bulletins, provide written communication that reinforces the spoken message and provides a record of the church's activities and teachings.
3. Nonverbal Communication: Church architecture, music, and rituals are all nonverbal communication that contribute to the church's atmosphere and reinforce its values and beliefs.
