Women's Health in Canada Marina Morrow, Olena Hankivsky, Colleen Varcoe, 2008-05-03 In recent years, healthcare professionals have recognized the distinctly different healthcare needs and concerns of men and women. Women's health in particular has come into its own in the last two decades. In Canada, however, there has been little available in the way of a general text on women's health. This volume works toward filling that gap by providing a resource for teaching and understanding women's health in this country. To lay out the methodological and theoretical foundations for their study, editors Olena Hankivsky, Marina Morrow and Colleen Varcoe bring together an interdisciplinary group of scholars and practitioners from economics, anthropology, sociology, nursing, political studies, women's studies and psychology. Contributors draw on the rich history of the Canadian women's health movement, providing analysis of that history and of the emergent theory, policy and practice. Aimed at undergraduate and graduate students as well as practitioners, the collection adopts an intersectional approach, looking closely at social factors such as gender, race, ethnicity, class, sexuality and gender identity and analysing how they relate both to each other and to women's health. Connections between the social, economic and cultural contexts of women's lives and their physical, spiritual and mental well-being are a primary focus. Providing a much-needed resource for teachers, students and practitioners of women's health in Canada, this comprehensive volume makes an important contribution to the literature.

Women's Health Across the Lifespan Karen Moses Allen, Janice Mitchell Phillips, 1997 This text should serve as a foundation for anyone studying women's health. Relevant issues and concerns as well as health problems of women from adolescence to mature years are covered. Physiological problems such as cancer, osteoporosis, infertility and hypertension receive attention. Special chapters address health promotion and prevention, cultural diversity and social issues and provide information on the health status of women.

Handbook of Cultural Health Psychology Shahe S. Kazarian, David R. Evans, 2001-08-24 The Handbook of Cultural Health Psychology discusses the influence of cultural beliefs, norms and values on illness, health and health care. The major health problems that are confronting the global village are discussed from a cultural perspective. These include heart disease, cancer, HIV/AIDS, pain and suicide. The cultural beliefs and practices of several cultural groups and the unique health issues confronting them are also presented. The cultural groups discussed include Latinos, Aboriginal peoples, people of African heritage and South Asians. The handbook contributes to increased personal awareness of the role of culture in health and illness behavior and to the delivery of culturally relevant health care services Many societies are culturally diverse or becoming so the cultural approach is a unique and necessary addition to the health psychology area Satisfies the ever increasing appetite of health psychologists for cultural issues in health and women s health issues Major and global health concerns are covered including heart disease cancer HIV AIDS pain suicide and health promotion The health beliefs and practices of Latinos people of African heritage Aboriginal peoples and South Asians are presented without stereotyping these cultural groups The handbook provides excellent information for health care researchers practitioners students and policy makers in culturally pluralistic communities References are thorough and completely up to date Women over 50 Varda Muhlbauser,Joan C. psychosocial examples that reveal its different impact on men and women especially with regard to reproduction and caregiving. She examines the extent to which these differences are associated with gender injustice, arguing for positions that reduce inequality between the sexes. The critical perspective Mahowald brings to this analysis is an egalitarian interpretation of feminism that demands attention to inequalities arising from racism, ethnocentrism, ableism, and classism, as well as sexism. Eschewing a notion of equality as sameness, Mahowald defines equality as attribution of the same value to different objects. Gender justice, she claims, imputes the same value to men and women despite their differences. It can only be maximized by practical efforts to equalize the burdens and benefits associated with genetics. The topics considered include participation in research, allocation of genetic services, cultural difference, sex selection, misattributed paternity, prenatal and preimplantation diagnosis, carrier testing, genetic interventions, genetic disabilities, preferences for genetic ties to offspring, genetic susceptibility to late onset disorders, behavioral genetics, genetic discrimination in employment and insurance, and human cloning. Cases, both real and concocted, are used to illustrate the questions addressed.
