expected to promote complex achievements in subject disciplines and in terms of employability problems arise how are such achievements to be assessed In the first part of the book it is argued that existing grading practices cannot cope with the expectations laid upon them while the potential of formative assessment for the support of learning is not fully realised The authors argue that improving the effectiveness of assessment depends on a well grounded appreciation of what assessment is and what may and may not be expected of it The second part covers summative judgements for high stakes purposes Using established measurement theory a view is developed of the conditions under which affordable useful valid and reliable summative judgements can be made One conclusion is that many complex achievements resist high stakes assessment which directs attention to low stakes essentially formative alternatives Assessment for learning and employability demands more than module level changes to assessment methods The final part discusses how institutions need to respond in policy terms to the challenges that have been posed The book concludes with a discussion of how institutions can respond in policy terms to the challenges that have been posed Assessment Learning and Employability has wide and practical relevance to teachers module and programme leaders higher education managers and quality enhancement specialists Rethinking

Knowledge within Higher Education Jan McArthur, 2013-01-10 Rethinking Knowledge within Higher Education argues for a higher education that is neither a romantic idyll of learning for its own sake nor an instrumental institution designed to train a willing workforce for the prevailing economic system Instead using analysis informed by critical theorist Theodor Adorno this book argues that higher education should have social and economic roles at its heart and that these should encompass the needs of all society The key to achieving this purpose without privilege lies in the ways in which knowledge is understood and engaged with in higher education Higher education has a special role in society as a place in which complex contested and dynamic knowledge is engaged with challenged and created The realization of this purpose challenges traditional dichotomies between economic and social purposes liberal and vocational education and theory and practice Jan McArthur shows that by interpreting and adapting some of Adorno's most complex ideas the nature of knowledge and the pursuit of social justice within higher education is feasible and aspirational Faith in Higher Education Hirpo

Kumbi, 2024-11-06 The higher education sector currently faces a series of challenges from internationalisation inclusivity financial cost and quality assurance This book examines the church founded model of higher education and argues that this is a promising approach for establishing greater levels of provision in the future especially in developing countries This book contains three case studies undertaken at church founded universities in the UK Kenya and Nigeria founded by church organisations but operating without denominational bias These reveal that this model emphasises the wellbeing of their students over the pursuit of profit and the delivery of relevant courses over easily marketed but unapplicable subjects These studies culminate in a set of recommendations for good practice which will be of use to church leaders policy makers and anyone concerned with widening participation in higher education Ultimately this book encourages co operation between churches and governments when establishing future institutions of higher education for the benefit of all
