Life among the Powers Rick Elgendy, 2024-11-14 Many Christians have come to see that they live in a world marked by structural problems legacies of racial injustice climate change constraining forms of gender and sexuality to name just a few A faithful response to these problems calls for ethical and political witness and theologians have used the New Testament language describing the principalities and powers to provide just that a picture of faith in which Christ redeems humanity from structures of power This tradition though sometimes offers the hope of an outside ways of living in which we can be no longer complicit with the powers This book pushes this conversation further seeking a theological understanding and the spirituality that lives within it of how we are implicated in such structures what we are called to do to resist their harms and who we might still become Along the way it reads together unlikely fellow travelers Karl Barth and Michel Foucault to argue that while our complicity with the powers is inescapable we can still live meaningfully different movingly faithful lives that challenge the forms of the world that we believe are passing away
