Autoethnography for Librarians and Information Scientists Ina Fourie,2021-06-24 Autoethnography for Librarians and Information Scientists illustrates that autoethnography is a rich qualitative research method that can enhance understanding of one s own work experiences whilst also facilitating the design of tailored experiences for a variety of audiences Starting with the position that librarians and information scientists require deep insight into people s experiences needs and information behaviour in order to design appropriate services and information interventions this book shows that using only conventional methods such as questionnaires and focus groups is insufficient Arguing that autoethnography can provide unique insights into users cultural experiences and needs contributors to this volume introduce the reader to different types of autoethnography Highlighting common challenges and clarifying how autoethnography can be combined with other research methods this book will empower librarians and information scientists to conceptualise topics for autoethnographic research whilst also ensuring that they adhere to strict ethical guidelines Chapters within the volume also demonstrate how to produce autoethnographic writing and stress the need to analyse autoethnographies produced by others Autoethnography for Librarians and

Information Scientists is essential reading for any librarian information scientist or student looking to deepen their understanding of their own experiences It will be particularly useful to those engaged in the study of service provision user studies and information behaviour

Freedom to Learn Bruce Macfarlane, 2016-08-12 The freedom of students to learn at university is being eroded by a performative culture that fails to respect their rights to engage and develop as autonomous adults Instead students are being restricted in how they learn when they learn and what they learn by the so called student engagement movement Compulsory attendance registers class contribution grading group project work and reflective learning exercises based on expectations of self disclosure and confession take little account of the rights of students or individual differences between them This new hidden university curriculum is intolerant of students who may prefer to learn informally are reticent shy or simply value their privacy Three forms of student performativity have arisen bodily participative and emotional which threaten the freedom to learn Key themes include A re imagining of student academic freedom The democratic student experience Challenging assumptions of the student engagement movement An examination of university policies and practices Freedom to Learn offers a radically new perspective on academic freedom from a student rights standpoint It analyzes the effects of performative expectations on students drawing on the distinction between negative and positive rights to re frame student academic freedom It argues that students need to be thought of as scholars with rights and that the phrase student centred learning needs to be reclaimed to reflect its original intention to allow students to develop as persons Student rights to non indoctrination reticence in choosing how to learn and in being treated like an adult ought to be central to this process in fostering a democratic rather authoritarian culture of learning and teaching at university Written for an international readership this book will be of great interest to anyone involved in higher education policy and practice drawing on a wide range of historical and contemporary literature related to sociology philosophy and higher education studies
