Translating Poetic Discourse Translating Poetic Discourse:

Translating Poetic Discourse Myriam Díaz-Diocaretz, 1985-01-01 Translating Poetic Discourse argues in favor of a critical model that bridges between translation and women's studies on theoretical and practical levels. It proposes key elements to be integrated into the problem of interpretation of contemporary poetry by women and discusses the links between gender markers and the speech situation in feminist discourse as a systematic problem. This book will be of interest to scholars of Translation Studies, Women's Studies, Poetry, Comparative Literature and Discourse. Translating Poetic

Boase-Beier, Lina Fisher, Hiroko Furukawa, 2018-06-26 This Handbook offers a comprehensive and engaging overview of contemporary issues in Literary Translation research through in-depth investigations of actual case studies of particular works, authors or translators. Leading researchers from across the globe discuss best practice problems and possibilities in the translation of poetry, novels, memoir and theatre. Divided into three sections, these illuminating analyses also address broad themes including translation style, the author-translator-reader relationship and relationships between national identity and literary translation. The case studies are drawn from languages and language varieties such as Catalan, Chinese, Dutch, English, French, German, Hebrew, Italian, Japanese, Nigerian English, Russian, Spanish, Scottish English and Turkish. The editors provide thorough introductory and concluding chapters which highlight the value of case study research and explore in detail the importance of the theory-practice link. Covering a wide range of topics, perspectives, methods, languages and geographies, this handbook will provide a valuable resource for researchers not only in Translation Studies but also in the related fields of Linguistics, Languages and Cultural Studies, Stylistics, Comparative Literature or Literary Studies. Translating the Poetry of the Holocaust Jean Boase-Beier, 2015-05-24 Taking a cognitive approach, this book asks what poetry and in particular Holocaust poetry does to the reader and to what extent the translation of this poetry can have the same effects. It is informed by current theoretical discussion and features many practical examples. Holocaust poetry differs from other genres of writing about the Holocaust in that it is not so much concerned to document facts as to document feelings and the sense of an experience. It shares the potential of all poetry to have profound effects on the thoughts and feelings of the reader. This book examines how the openness to engagement that Holocaust poetry can engender, achieved through stylistic means, needs to be preserved in translation if the translated poem is to function as a Holocaust poem in any meaningful sense. This is especially true when historical and cultural distance intervenes. The first book of its kind and by a world-renowned scholar.

Guerrero, Asunción Sánchez Villalón, 2001 The different contributions of this body of work attempt to demonstrate that the concept of diaspora exile has acquired a renewed currency among scholars by examining that to be in exile at least in some way is to live a disjoint life Thus to live in exile or diaspora implies to take up the difficult task of keeping one's dignity and one's story despite the onslaught of a colonial power The relationship with a past often through stories of the mother land or through remembrance and re-creation becomes a means of survival Furthermore the sense or absence of community and the positioning in language generate an ever more complex and dialogic definition of Canadian and American nationalities and identities Bridging the Gap between Theory and Practice in Translation and Gender Studies Vanessa

Leonardi, 2013-11-13 The aim of this work is to share information on two very interesting yet debatable issues within the field of Translation Studies namely gender and translation in an attempt to bridge the gap between theory and practice Given the important relationship between translation and gender since the beginning of the theoretical debate in Feminist Translation Studies the aim of this edited volume is to determine and analyse how this relationship has been approached in different countries not only in Europe but also worldwide Feminist translation is undoubtedly a very interesting and widespread phenomenon which includes and combines questions of language culture gender identity and sexual equality Feminist Translation Studies has established itself as a solid field of research and practice in many countries and its purpose is to reverse the subordinate role of both women and translators in society by challenging and fighting against what is perceived as patriarchal language There are still numerous issues that can be taken into account when focusing on translation and gender and this volume intends to be part of a wider discussion on Translation Studies The volume intends to outline how scholars in various contexts have approached the question of gender and translation the use/misuse of the term feminist translation the problematic issue of bridging the gap between theory and practice and to open a new discussion on this field of research which we believe is still a very interesting one to exploit Translating Literatures, Translating Cultures

A Rosario Castellanos Reader Rosario Castellanos, 2010-06-28 Thinker writer diplomat feminist Rosario Castellanos was emerging as one of Mexico's major literary figures before her untimely death in 1974 This sampler of her work brings together her major poems short fiction essays and a three act play The Eternal Feminine Translated with fidelity to language and cultural nuance many of these works appear here in English for the first time allowing English speaking readers to see the depth and range of Castellanos work In her introductory essay Reading Rosario Castellanos Contexts Voices and Signs Maureen Ahern presents the first comprehensive study of Castellanos work as a sign or signifying system This approach through contemporary semiotic theory unites literary criticism and translation as an integral semiotic process Ahern reveals how Castellanos integrated women's images bodies voices and texts to feminize her discourse and create a plurality of new signs messages about women in Mexico Describing this process in The Eternal Feminine Castellanos observes it's not good enough to imitate the models proposed for us that are answers to circumstances other than our own It isn't even enough to discover who we are We have to invent ourselves

Translation and Minority Lawrence Venuti, 2016-04-29 The premise of this volume is a question What can the concept of minority bring to the practice and study of translation Minority is understood here to mean a cultural or political position that is subordinate whether the social context that so defines it is local national or global This position is occupied by languages and literatures that lack prestige or authority the non standard and the non canonical what is not spoken or read much by a hegemonic culture Yet minorities also include the nations and social groups that are affiliated with these languages and literatures the politically weak or underrepresented the colonized and the disenfranchised the exploited and the stigmatized Translation today is itself a minor use of language a lesser art an invisible craft that commands less cultural capital and fewer legal privileges than original composition Yet the focus in this collection is not on what translators worldwide have in common but on the distinctive forms that translating takes when it is done by or on behalf of minorities The articles in this volume present a variety of case studies that illuminate the linguistic and cultural problems posed by such translating as well as the economic and political agendas it has served Together these pieces show that the concept of minority is worth exploring because it inspires innovation in translation practice and research Minor cultures are coincident with new translation strategies new translation theories and new syntheses of the diverse methodologies that constitute the discipline of translation studies

From World To World: An Armamentarium Cees Koster, 2021-11-15 In this book one of the old traditions of translation studies is revived the tradition of the comparative study of translation and original The aim of the author is to develop an armamentarium a set of analytical instruments and a procedure for the systematic study of poetic discourse in translation The armamentarium provides the means to describe the translational interpretation that is the interpretation of the original as it emerges from the translation and may be constructed in the course of a comparison between the two texts. The practical result of this study is based on a solid theoretical foundation. This study most of all reflects on the possibilities of translation comparison and description per se. It is one of the few books in which an in depth study is undertaken into the principles of translation comparison itself into its limits and possibilities and into its central concepts. Shift unit of comparison etcetera. Before presenting his own proposal for a comparative procedure the author critically evaluates several existing methods particularly those of Toury, Van Leuven, Zwart and the German transfer oriented approach. The theoretical considerations in this book are amply illustrated by analyses of translated works of poets as Rutger Kopland and Robert Lowell. The book also contains an extensive case study into the translations by the German poet Paul Celan of a selection of William Shakespeare's sonnets.

Joyful Babel, 2021-11-22. Joyful Babel: Translating Hélène Cixous is a selection of critical essays on translation and the writing of Hélène Cixous with contributions from translators of her texts into different languages and cultures. The present volume is unique in that it is the first collection of essays on the work of Cixous from the perspective of translation. It presents new explorations into translating as process, theory and practice and new insights on Cixous's fictional and theoretical world. It is an international collection open to readings of Cixous's writing including the theoretical, fictional and dramatic discourses. The variety of intersecting subjects and perspectives provokes interrogates and explores Cixous's theory and writing in ways that will contribute to a deeper understanding of her oeuvre. It will motivate new debates as well as inspire new research. This book is addressed to a wide range of readers from those who initiate themselves to translation or already practise it to readers and critics of Cixous's work, linguists and translation theorists, scholars interested in gender and postcolonial issues and critics of contemporary literature, thus not only academics but also professional translators as well as drama/theatre staging practitioners.

Latinx Comics Studies Fernanda Díaz-Basteris, Maite Urcaregui, 2025-04-15. Latinx Comics Studies: Critical and Creative Crossings offers an intersectional and interdisciplinary approach to analyzing Latinx studies and comics studies. The book draws together groundbreaking critical essays, practical pedagogical reflections and original and republished short comics. The works in this collection discuss the construction of national identity and memory, undocumented narratives, Indigenous and Afro-Latinx experiences, multiracial and multilingual identities, transnational and diasporic connections, natural disasters and unnatural colonial violence, feminist and queer interventions, Latinx futurities and more. Together the critical and creative works in this collection begin to map out the emerging and evolving field of Latinx comics studies and to envision what might be possible in and through Latinx comics. This collection moves beyond simply cataloguing and celebrating Latinx representation within comics. It examines how comics by and for Latinx peoples creatively and conceptually experiment with the very boundaries of Latinx and portray the diverse lived experiences therein.

Women, Feminist Identity and Society in the 1980s Myriam Díaz-Diocaretz, Iris M. Zavala, 1985-01-01. The general objective of this volume is to present and discuss different modes of existence in women's texts and feminist identity in political and poetic discourse on the one hand and to analyze the factors which determine differing relationships between women and society and which result in specific forms of identity on the other. The essays in this volume explore language, gender, mass media, sexuality, class and social change, women's identity as Blacks and in the Third World as well as the nature of domination, feminine criticism and female creativity. The volume opens with a challenging question by the feminist poet Adrienne Rich: Who is We.

A Companion to Translation Studies Piotr Kuhiwczak, Karin Littau, 2007-01-01. A Companion to Translation Studies is the first work of its kind. It provides an authoritative guide to key approaches in translation studies. All of the essays are specially commissioned for this collection and written by leading international experts in the field. The book is divided into nine specialist areas: culture, philosophy, linguistics, history, literary, gender, theatre and opera, screen and politics. Each chapter gives an in-depth account of theoretical concepts, issues and debates which define a field within translation studies, mapping out past trends and suggesting how research might develop in the future.

Reflections on Translation Susan Bassnett, 2011. This collection of essays brings together a decade of writings on translation by leading international translation studies expert Susan Bassnett. The essays cover a range of topics and will be useful to anyone with an interest in how different cultures communicate.

Women as Translators in Early Modern England Deborah Uman, 2012-04-12. Women as Translators in Early Modern England offers a feminist theory of translation that considers both the practice and representation of translation in works penned by early modern women. It argues for the importance of such a theory in changing how we value women's work. Because of England's formal split from the Catholic Church and the concomitant elevation of the written vernacular, the early modern period presents a rich case study for such a theory. This era witnessed not only a keen interest in reviving the literary glories of the past but also a growing commitment to humanist education, increasing literacy rates among women and laypeople and emerging articulations of national sentiment. Moreover, the period saw a shift in views of authorship in what it might mean for individuals to seek fame or profit through writing. Until relatively recently in early modern scholarship, women were understood as excluded from achieving authorial status for a number of reasons: their limited education, the belief that public writing was particularly scandalous for women and the implicit rule that they should adhere to the holy trinity of chastity, silence and obedience. While this view has changed significantly, women writers are still understood, however grudgingly, as marginal to the literary culture of the time. Fewer women than men wrote; they wrote less, and their choice of genres seems somewhat impoverished. Add to this the debate over translation as a potential vehicle of literary expression and we can see why early modern women's writings are still undervalued. This book looks at how female translators represent themselves and their work, revealing a general pattern in which translation reflects the limitations women faced as writers while simultaneously giving them the opportunity to transcend these limitations. Indeed, translation gave women the chance to assume an authorial role, a role that by legal and cultural standards should have been denied to them, a role that gave them ownership of their words and the chance to achieve profit fame status and influence Published by University of Delaware
