Justice Moira Inghilleri, 2013-03-01 In this timely study Inghilleri examines the interface between ethics language and politics during acts of interpreting with reference to two particular sites of transnational conflict the political and judicial context of asylum adjudication and the geo political context of war The book characterizes the social and moral spaces in which the translation of the spoken word occurs in ways that reflect the realities of the trans nationally constituted locally and globally informed environments in which interpreters work alongside others One of the core arguments is that the rather restricted notion of neutrality that remains central to translator and interpreter practices does not adequately reflect the complex and paradoxical nature of these socially and politically inscribed encounters and others like them This study offers an alternative theoretical perspective on language and ethics to those which have shaped and informed translation and interpreting theory and practice in recent years

Remapping Habitus in Translation Studies Gisella M. Vorderobermeier, 2014-05-20 The publication deliberately concentrates on the reception and application of one concept highly influential in the sociology of translation and interpreting namely habitus By critically engaging with this Bourdieusian concept it aspires to re estimate not only interdisciplinary interfaces but also those with different approaches in the discipline itself The authors of the contributions collected in this volume by engaging with the habitus concept lend expression to the conviction that it is indeed a concept which upsets i e one with the potential to make a difference to research agendas They are cutting across diverse traditions of Bourdieu reception within and beyond the discipline each paper being based on unique research experiences We do hope that this volume can help to find and maintain the delicate balance between consolidating an area of research by insisting on methodological rigour as well as on the sine qua non of a given body of thought on the one hand and being critically inventive on the other
