Therapy Infants Treating Traumatized Child:

Therapeutic Approaches in Work with Traumatized Children and Young People Patrick Tomlinson, 2004-07-15
Therapeutic Approaches in Work with Traumatized Children and Young People provides a clear and comprehensive link between theory and practice. The author shows how practice in residential child care, fostering and other areas of work with children can be developed in a way that is thoughtful and underpinned by a sound theoretical base. Therapy with Infants Inger Poulsen, 2018
When a child without a fully developed language experiences physical and psychological stress that exceeds the child's capacity to cope, the experience can leave lasting marks unless the child receives treatment. Infant therapy is a method inspired by the work of the French pediatrician and psychoanalyst Françoise Dolto and her student Caroline Eliacheff. The method can be applied both with infants and with older children. The most important messages are: Never allow the child's pain to be forgotten and Everything that is left unsaid ties up energy. In therapy, the therapist puts the child's stressful experiences into words. The infant's story is told; the words bring order to the child's chaos, and the trauma becomes an identified part of his or her life. Infant therapy is primarily a therapeutic intervention aimed at traumatized infants, but the method can also be applied in daily educational practices by preschool teachers, nurses, teachers, day care providers, and parents. Provided by publisher. Developing a Therapeutic Treatment Programme for Traumatized Children and Young People Christine Bradley, Francie Kinchington, 2024-11-26
This manual sets out an accessible model for assessing the emotional needs of traumatized children and young adults and using the outcomes of the assessment to develop individualized therapeutic programmes to support their needs and emotional development. Evolved from Christine Bradley's over 40 years of working with children and young people with complex histories, the model and the case studies presented are firmly rooted in a psychotherapeutic approach and her early training of working with pioneers in the field. It presents a needs-led assessment and treatment tool that offers insight and an understanding of the complex histories and behaviours of individual children and young people based on the impact that trauma has on the inner world of the child. The treatment programme is presented in a clearly written and highly accessible step-by-step approach that is supplemented by exemplar case studies and moving anecdotes. This manual will be of use to any professional working with traumatized children and young people, including therapists, social workers, foster carers, and teachers. It will allow individuals who otherwise would not feel they possess the confidence, knowledge, training, or experience to conduct a high-quality, effective, individualized, needs-led assessment and subsequent treatment programme. Evidence-Based Treatments for Trauma-Related Disorders in Children and Adolescents Markus A. Landolt, Marylène Cloitre, Ulrich Schnyder, 2025-02-07
The second, completely revised and updated edition of this handbook presents the current evidence-based psychological treatments for trauma-related disorders in childhood and adolescence. In addition, it provides clearly structured, up-to-date information on the fundamental principles of traumatic stress research and practice in this age group, covering epidemiology, developmental issues, pathogenetic models, diagnostics and assessment Each of the chapters on treatment which form the core of the book begins with a summary of the theoretical underpinnings of the approach followed by a case presentation illustrating the treatment protocol session by session an analysis of special challenges typically encountered in implementing this treatment and an overview of the current evidence supporting the treatment approach An innovative new section has been added to address the needs of emerging populations featuring four new chapters that delve into the treatment of preschoolers forcibly displaced children and adolescents sexual and gender minorities and indigenous populations A special section considers treatments in particular settings such as schools hospitals and juvenile justice systems The concluding chapter provides an integrative discussion on how to effectively treat traumatized children and adolescents and an outlook into future developments This book will be invaluable for clinical child and adolescent psychologists child and adolescent psychiatrists psychotherapists and other mental health professionals dedicated to the care of traumatized children and adolescents

Therapy with Infants Inger Poulsen, Inger Thormann, 2019-07-31 When a child without a fully developed language experiences physical and psychological stress that exceeds the child's capacity to cope the experience can leave lasting marks unless the child receives treatment Infant therapy is a method inspired by the work of the French pediatrician and psychoanalyst Françoise Dolto and her student Caroline Eli
