Tropical Deforestation Catrinus J Jepma, 1995 Tropical Deforestation C. J. Jepma, 2014-02-04 The depletion of the tropical rain forests has attracted considerable attention in recent times and the serious consequences for the global biosphere are widely acknowledged Yet deforestation continues apace and in some areas for example southeast Asia the very existence of the forests is seriously threatened Contrary to popular belief evidence suggests that local economic and living conditions are more significant in this than timber exploitation for exports to the Northern countries Tropical Deforestation A Socio Economic Approach offers a new perspective on the economic imperatives which encourage indigenous populations to encroach upon their own forests and shows how action against deforestation must form part of a wider movement to improve both the living conditions of the local inhabitants and the durability of their national economies Part 1 offers an overview of the processes surrounding deforestation and an assessment of the current situation Part 2 analyses the land use issues and explains the socioeconomic imperatives in the affected regions In an absorbing conclusion Part 3 guides the reader through a series of hypothetical policy scenarios using a specially adapted economic computer model to predict which combinations of policies and trade arrangements might bring about a more beneficial state of affairs The Social Dynamics of Deforestation in the Philippines Gerhard van den Top, 2003 This work offers a detailed case study on the dynamics of forest use degradation and loss in Northeast Luzon Philippines Following an interdisciplinary approach the study charts the degradation and loss of forest in this area between 1950 and 1990 as it relates to the social and political context of logging forest migration and changes in upland agriculture Based on ten years of research the author introduces us to the actions livelihood options and motives of all the principal group of actors

World Forests from Deforestation to Transition? Matti Palo, Heidi Vanhanen, 2000 This book addresses global and subnational issues concerning the world's forests societies and environment from an independent and non governmental point of view Cooperation on a global scale is not only commendable it is essential if solutions to the problems facing the world's forests are to be found. To achieve this, modern science needs to draw a clearer picture of relationships between forests, human activity and the environment and of the consequences of environmental change for the societies' development and growth. There are several partly intermingled evolutionary forest transitions underway: the slow transition from forest area decrease to an increase in the North while deforestation and degradation continues in the South. Although not all deforestation is considered negative, serious social, economic and environmental costs may be associated with excessive deforestation. Deforestation control is just the first step on the stony path towards sustainable forest management. The forest management transition refers to the shift in the utilization towards managed semi-natural secondary forests and plantation forests. There are some signs in the North of the forest paradigm shift from sustainable yield to forest ecosystem concepts. How deforestation can be tackled and how these concurrent transitions are effected will have profound implications for the future. These processes involve several challenges with South-North dimensions. A search for an optimum mix of public policies and markets is a global priority both as a forest policy issue and as an inter-sectoral item on the political agenda. Deforestation and transition is discussed here by a team of 14 scientists from both the North and the South. This book offers knowledge, facts and information about world forests, society and environment to help us towards equity in our use of the global forest to create a clearer vision of unasyilva.
