Resources 1998-99 World Resources Institute, 1998 This is the 8th edition in a series which provides an authoritative assessment of the world's natural resource base This edition focuses on the relationship between environmental change and human health Drawing on the latest scientific data it explores how environmental conditions contribute to death and disease around the world and how that may change in the coming decades Air Pollution and Health J. G. Ayres, Robert Maynard, Roy Richards, 2006 This invaluable volume the third in the series Air Pollution Reviews addresses particular questions relating to air pollution and its effect on health rather than just providing an overall perspective It deals with the impact of nasal disease on lung exposure how pollutants are distributed within the lung and the uncertainties with regard to defining the dose to the lung It takes a tangential look at the lung dose by exploring the possibility of obtaining clues from occupational medicine Toxicologically the book examines the possible methodology for exploring how particles and their toxicity can be investigated and looks into the cardio toxic effects of air pollution The effects of pollutant mixtures are compared with those of separate individual pollutants In addition the question of the importance of air acidity is tackled Epidemiologically the book deals with the problems associated with point sources as opposed to diffuse sources of air pollution and considers whether we can quantify the health effects of air pollution adequately These areas though difficult need to be addressed in order to further develop our knowledge of the health effects of air pollution In this volume a strong panel of authors treat the issues They have raised more questions but at the same time succeeded in solving a number of problems Methodological Issues in Epidemiologic Studies of Childhood Leukemia Kyndaron Sybil Reinier, 2002

villages with dumpsite rankings Negative birth outcomes examined first included low and very low birth weight preterm birth and small for gestational age SGA Mothers from villages with intermediate and high hazard dumpsites had a higher proportion of low birth weight infants than mothers from villages with low hazard dumpsites On average infants weighed less and pregnancies were shorter in mothers from villages with higher hazard dumpsites compared to the referent category No differences were detected across exposure levels for incidences of for other outcomes Rates of fetal and neonatal deaths and congenital anomalies in infants with respect to the hazard rankings of dumpsites were also examined The most highly weighted hazard factors were also used as predictors of adverse pregnancy outcomes No differences in rates were detected across exposure levels although adjusted estimates were positive in most congenital anomaly categories Infants born to mothers residing in villages with high hazard dumpsite contents were more likely to have other congenital defects than infants in the referent category Other hazard factors were not significant predictors for any outcomes examined These are the first studies to evaluate potential health effects related to open dumpsites and SWD practices in AN villages
