nature revealed by social media imagines network technology and data as models for behavior online Covering a wide range of historical and interdisciplinary subjects Grant Bollmer examines the emergence of the network as a model for relation in the 1700s and 1800s and follows it through marginal often forgotten articulations of technology biology economics and the social From this history Bollmer examines contemporary controversies surrounding social media extending out to the influence of network models on issues of critical theory politics popular science and neoliberalism By moving through the past and present of network media Inhuman Networks demonstrates how contemporary network culture unintentionally repeats debates over the limits of Western modernity to provide an idealized future where the human is interchangeable with abstract flowing data connected through well managed distributed networks

The Science of Managing Our Digital Stuff Ofer Bergman, Steve Whittaker, 2016-11-11

Why we organize our personal digital data the way we do and how design of new PIM systems can help us manage our information more efficiently

Each of us has an ever growing collection of personal digital data documents photographs PowerPoint presentations videos music emails and texts sent and received

To access any of this we have to find it

The ease or difficulty of finding something depends on how we organize our digital stuff

In this book personal information management PIM experts Ofer Bergman and Steve Whittaker explain why we organize our personal digital data the way we do and how the design of new PIM systems can help us manage our collections more efficiently

Bergman and Whittaker report that many of us use hierarchical folders for our personal digital organizing

Critics of this method point out that information is hidden from sight in folders that are often within other folders so that we have to remember the exact location of information to access it

Because of this information scientists suggest other methods search more flexible than navigating folders tags which allow multiple categorizations and group information management

Yet Bergman and Whittaker have found in their pioneering PIM research that these other methods that work best for public information management don't work as well for personal information management

Bergman and Whittaker describe personal information collection as curation we preserve and organize this data to ensure our future access to it

Unlike other information management fields in PIM the same user organizes and retrieves the information

After explaining the cognitive and psychological reasons that so many prefer folders Bergman and Whittaker propose the user subjective approach to PIM which does not replace folder hierarchies but exploits these unique characteristics of PIM
