Water Policy and Governance in South Asia M. Anwar Hossen,2017-03-16 Dr Hossen carried out an exceptional program of research in Bangladesh which focused on water governance in relation to human rights international water law and environmental sustainability His major argument is that eco agricultural system encounters major disruptions due to a number of factors including regional hydropolitics and neoliberal and highly centralized approaches to water resource management that follow the principles of ecocracy In this context Dr Hossen explores three major questions i How can local ecological knowledge be incorporated into national water policy ii What strategies and reforms are required at the international watershed governance level and iii How can human rights principles including the principle of water as a human right be used to formulate more effective water policy and governance principles To answer these questions Dr Hossen explores the effects of regional hydropolitics on water management focusing on three large engineering projects the Farakka Barrage built by India on the Ganges River and the Ganges Kobodak GK and Gorai River Restoration GRR Projects in Bangladesh This analysis is based on his research into local knowledge and farming practices during a year of fieldwork in 2011 12 focus group discussions in depth case studies and social survey methods In addition to this primary data he looks at extensive secondary documents from the government of Bangladesh pertaining to water management agricultural modernization and institutional structures The arguments herein are applicable particularly to the Ganges Brahmaputra Basin countries in South Asia but also to the river basins of other parts of the world

Water and Society Terje Tvedt, 2015-12-22 Despite the central importance that water has held for civilizations both ancient and modern its social significance has made surprisingly little impact on our contemporary understanding of human history and development Dominant interpretations of the relationship between society and nature have remained water blind In Water and Society historian and leading water expert Terje Tvedt argues for a change that acknowledges the significant role played by water in societal development Reflecting his expertise as a geographer historian and a political scientist and drawing on his wide experience of water issues around the world Terje Tvedt's Water and Society provides a long overdue reappraisal of the relationship between water and society one that gives water its rightful place as central to any true understanding of human history and development
