Everyone has heard of George Balanchine. Few outside Russia know of Leonid Yakobson, Balanchine's contemporary who remained in Lenin's Russia and survived censorship during the darkest days of Stalin. Like Shostakovich, Yakobson suffered for his art and yet managed to create a singular body of revolutionary dances that spoke to the Soviet condition. His work was often considered so culturally explosive that it was described as like a bomb going off. Based on untapped archival collections of photographs, films, and writings about Yakobson's work in Moscow and St. Petersburg for the Bolshoi and Kirov ballets, as well as interviews with former dancers, family, and audience members, this illuminating and beautifully written biography brings to life a hidden history of artistic resistance in the USSR through this brave artist who struggled against officially sanctioned anti-Semitism while offering a vista of hope. How to Tell When We Will Die Johanna Hedva, 2024-09-24. From one of the most influential voices in disability activism comes an essay collection that detonates a bomb in our collective understanding of care and illness, showing us that sickness is a vibrant part of life. In the wake of the 2014 Ferguson riots and sick with a chronic condition that rendered them housebound, Johanna Hedva turned to the page to ask: How do you throw a brick through the window of a bank if you can't get out of bed? It was not long before this essay, Sick Woman Theory, became a seminal work on disability because in reframing illness as not just a biological experience but a social one, Hedva argues that under capitalism—a system that limits our worth to the productivity of our bodies—we must reach for the revolutionary act of caring for ourselves and others. How to Tell When We Will Die expands upon Hedva's paradigm-shifting perspective in a series of slyly subversive and razor-sharp essays that range from the theoretical to the personal, from Deborah Levy and Susan Sontag to wrestling, kink, mysticism, death, and the color yellow. Drawing from their experiences with America's byzantine healthcare system and considering archetypes they call The Psychotic Woman, The Freak, and The Hag in Charge, Hedva offers a bracing indictment of the politics that exploit sickness, relying on and fueling ableism to the detriment of us all. With the insight of Anne Boyer's The Undying and Leslie Jamison's The Empathy Exams and the wit of Samantha Irby, Hedva's debut collection upends our collective concept of disability. In their radical reimaging of a world where care and pain are symbiotic and our bodies are allowed to live free and well, Hedva implores us to remember that illness is neither an inconvenience or inevitability but an enlivening and elemental part of being alive. The New Yorker Harold Wallace Ross, William Shawn, Tina Brown, David Remnick, Katharine Sergeant Angell, White, Rea Irvin, Roger Angell, 2008-10. Jewish Book World, 2006. The New York Times Index, 2007. Public Library Catalog, 2004. Public Library Core Collection John Greenfield, Patrice Bartell, 2008.
