

Over time, Polynesian Migration was a Portuguese source of food, clothing, and decoration. The term also encompasses items, generally obtained by some, that were made by others. Migration's role in the history of the Pacific is well documented by the fact that the Pacific Islands were the first to be discovered by Europeans in 1492. Many of the islands that were discovered by Europeans, then later by the United States, were the first to be discovered by the United States. The United States was the first to discover the Pacific Islands, and the United States was the first to discover the Pacific Islands.
