Regulation of Community Antenna Television United States. Congress. House. Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce. Subcommittee on Communications and Power,1965 FCC Record United States. Federal Communications Commission,2006-02 The Revolution Wasn't Televised Lynn Spigel,Michael Curtin,2013-08-21 Caricatures of sixties television called a vast wasteland by the FCC president in the early sixties continue to dominate our perceptions of the era and cloud popular understanding of the relationship between pop culture and larger social forces Opposed to these conceptions The Revolution Wasn't Televised explores the ways in which prime time television was centrally involved in the social conflicts of the 1960s It was then that television became a ubiquitous element in American homes The contributors in this volume argue that due to TV s constant presence in everyday life it became the object of intense debates over childraising education racism gender technology politics violence and Vietnam These essays explore the minutia of TV in relation to the macro structure of sixties politics and society attempting to understand the struggles that took place over representation the nation s most popular communications media during the 1960s *People v. Levin,1980-07-18 How diverse can and should TV programming be And especially in what precise ways does governmental regulation of TV affect or fail to affect the programs station owners produce programs which in the final analysis shape in such large measure the values of Americans It is to these timely and beguiling questions that Harvey Levin addresses his dispassionate assessment of the complex relationship between government and the TV industry Analyzing data drawn from the history of the FCC s regulatory decisions as well as from interviews with numerous government and industry officials Professor Levin shows how the present form of restrictive governmental regulation almost always results in higher profits and rents for TV stations with no concomitant increase in programming diversity In addition Professor Levin investigates various other aspects of the media market from the particular kinds of crucial decisions that are made when for example a newspaper owns a TV station to the kinds of problems that arise when commercial rents are taxed to fund public TV from the brand of programming we are offered when a monopoly controls a given TV market to the nature of programming in a situation of steady and fair competition Following a comprehensive assessment the author makes a compelling case for diversification of station ownership in order to be safe rather than sorry He also argues for the entry of new stations more extensive support of public TV and some form of quantitative program requirements all of which will help bring about greater program diversity Professor Levin s volume provides us with a fully documented and sharply focused analysis of the theories policies and problems of one of the most powerful and misunderstood of contemporary institutions Federal Register ,1975-03-10
