focus on the artist's role as a creative and moral exemplar for German artists and museum visitors. In an era when museums were emerging as symbols of civic regional and national identity, dozens of new national princely and civic museums began to feature portraits of Dürer in their elaborate decorative programs, embellishing the facades, grand staircases, galleries, and ceremonial spaces. Most of these arose in Germany and Austria, though examples can be seen as far away as St. Petersburg, Stockholm, London, and New York City. Probing the cultural, political, and educational aspirations and rivalries of these museums and their patrons, Smith traces how Dürer was painted, sculpted, and prominently placed to accommodate the era's diverse needs and aspirations. He investigates what these portraits can tell us about the rise of a distinct canon of famous Renaissance and Baroque artists, addressing the question of why Dürer was so often paired with Raphael, who was considered to embody the greatness of Italian art, and why, with the rise of German nationalism, Hans Holbein the Younger often replaced Raphael as Dürer's partner. Accessibly written and comprehensive in scope, this book sheds new light on museum building in the nineteenth century and the rise of art history as a discipline. It will appeal to specialists in nineteenth-century and early modern art, the history of museums and collecting, and art historiography.

Early Modern Visual Culture Peter Erickson, Clark Hulse, 2000-09-12.
