What Do Children Need to Flourish? Kristin Anderson Moore, Laura H. Lippman, 2005-05-05 This volume responds to the intense concern for and interest in identifying and measuring what matters for happy healthy children who grow to be compassionate responsible adults And although innumerable organizations undertake efforts aimed at positive youth development this book takes the first step toward developing a system of national indicators that can be used to monitor positive behaviors and attitudes for children at the national level in communities and in programs Flourishing Children Laura H. Lippman, Kristin Anderson Moore, Lina Guzman, Renee Ryberg, Hugh McIntosh, Manica F. Ramos, Salma Caal, Adam Carle, Megan Kuhfeld, 2014-07-08 This volume presents the results of the Flourishing Children Project The study addressed gaps in the research on indicators of positive development of adolescents Such indicators are essential for the balanced and scientifically sound study of adolescents Yet measures of many aspects of flourishing are not available and when they do exist they are rarely measured in a developmentally appropriate manner for adolescents In addition they are often too long for program evaluations and surveys have not been tested on diverse populations nor carefully validated as predictors of positive outcomes The Flourishing Children Project undertook the development of scales for adolescents ages 12 17 for 19 aspects of flourishing covering six domains flourishing in school and work personal flourishing flourishing in relationships relationship skills helping others to flourish and environmental stewardship This volume describes the four stage process of developing the scales including Reviewing the literature for extant measures for items to test and synthesizing the existing research into consensus definitions for each construct conducting cognitive testing of items with adolescents and their parents pilot testing the items and conducting psychometric analyses A Good Childhood Judy Dunn, Richard Layard, 2009-02-05 Every day the newspapers lament the problems facing our children broken homes pressures to eat and drink the stress of exams The same issues are discussed in every pub and at every dinner party But is life really more difficult for children than it was and if so why And how can we make it better This book which is a result of a two year investigation by the Children s Society and draws upon the work of the UK s leading experts in many fields explores the main stresses and influences to which every child is exposed family friends youth culture values and schooling and will make recommendations as to how we can improve the upbringing of our children It tackles issues which affect every child whatever their background and questions and provides solutions to the belief that life has become so extraordinarily difficult for children in general The experts make 30 specific recommendations written not from the point of view of academics but for the general reader above all for parents and teachers We expect publication to be a major event and the centre of widespread media attention The Child's Food Garden Van Evrie Kilpatrick, 1918 The Social Welfare Forum National Conference on Social Welfare, 1921 Baptist Commonwealth, 1907 Procreative Justice Erik Magnusson, 2025-07-31 This book explores how considerations of justice apply to procreative decision making Despite its immense personal significance procreation is an inherently other regarding endeavor By its very nature the decision to procreate is the decision to bring into existence another morally considerable being one who will be exposed to the full range of harms benefits and risks that accompany a typical human life and one who cannot by its nature ever consent to being born Moreover when this decision is undertaken in a community of persons it is also a decision to affect the lives of others in a host of profound if often underappreciated ways from its effects on population size and environmental sustainability to its consequences for a community's distribution of resources In many ways of course these interests coincide adults need children for their parenting projects societies need citizens for the maintenance of their institutions and children themselves are often happy to have been brought into existence However as the book demonstrates the various interests that are implicated by procreative decision making can also come into conflict as well and in ways that raise basic questions of justice Through a systematic examination of six of these questions the author argues that taking adequate stock of the conflicting interests at stake in procreative decision making leads to a narrower view of the conditions under which it is morally permissible to procreate and a much more demanding conception of our procreative responsibilities Procreative Justice will be of interest to researchers and advanced students working on the morality of procreation and related areas of philosophy including bioethics intergenerational ethics environmental ethics population ethics and the ethics of the family Navigating Communication and Sensory Development for Every Child Vicky Robinson, Joanne
