

The background of the cover is a close-up photograph of several ginkgo leaves. The leaves are a vibrant yellow-green color, showing the characteristic fan shape and the fine, parallel veins that radiate from the base. They are set against a dark, almost black background, which makes the leaves stand out. The lighting is soft, highlighting the texture and edges of the leaves.

A World Perspective Daniel Eskinazi, 2001-06-04 This book provides an overview of factors that have influenced and will continue to influence the development of alternative traditional medicine in the world. Traditionally the lack of relevant good quality scientific research is often the reason why a large number of healthcare practices are labeled alternative. However nonscientific factors may be at least as important as the scientific ones. Among such factors are cultural, political, administrative and economic considerations. The articles in this volume provide an international perspective on how such pervasive factors impact on the development, research and practice of alternative medicine in the world.

African Traditional Medicine: Autonomy and Informed Consent Peter Ikechukwu

Osuji, 2014-07-18 This book focuses on informed consent in African Traditional Medicine (ATM). ATM forms a large portion of the healthcare systems in Africa. WHO statistics show that as much as 80% of the population in Africa uses traditional medicine for primary health care. With such a large constituency it follows that ATM and its practices should receive more attention in bioethics. By comparing the ethics of care approach with the ATM approach to Relational Autonomy In Consent (RAIC), the authors argue that the ATM focus on consent based on consensus constitutes a legitimate informed consent. This book is distinctive insofar as it employs the ethics of care as a hermeneutic to interpret ATM. The analysis examines the ethics of care movement in Western bioethics to explore its relational approach to informed consent. Additionally, this is the first known study that discusses healthcare ethics committees in ATM.

Filipe, Peter Conrad, Ilina Singh, 2018 Examining ADHD and its social and medical treatments around the world Attention deficit hyperactivity disorder ADHD has been a common psychiatric diagnosis in both children and adults since the 1980s and 1990s in the United States But the diagnosis was much less common even unknown in other parts of the world By the end of the twentieth century this was no longer the case and ADHD diagnosis and treatment became an increasingly widespread global phenomenon As the diagnosis was adopted around the world the definition and treatment of ADHD often changed in the context of different psychiatric professions medical systems and cultures Global Perspectives on ADHD is the first book to examine how this expanding public health concern is diagnosed and treated in 16 different countries In some countries readers learn over 10% of school aged children and adolescents are diagnosed with ADHD in others that figure is less than 1% Some countries focus on medicating children with ADHD others emphasize parent intervention or child therapy Showing how a medical diagnosis varies across contexts and time periods this book explains
