When someone sabotages ex Navy SEAL Luke Baldwin's unhackable software there's more than his reputation at stake. This volume brings together eminent Tagore scholars and younger writers to revisit the concepts of nation, nationalism, identity, and selfhood, civilization, culture, and homeland in Tagore's writings. As these ideas take up the centre stage of politics in the subcontinent, as also elsewhere in the world in the 21st century, it becomes extremely relevant to revisit his works in this context. Tagore's ambivalence towards nationalism as an ideology was apparent in the responses in his discussions with Indians and non-Indians alike. Tagore developed the concept of syncretic civilization as a basis of nationalist civilizational unity, where society was central, unlike the European model of state-centric civilization. However, as the subterranean tensions of communalism became clear in the early 20th century, Tagore reflexively critiqued his own political position in society. He thus emerged as the critic of the nation-state, and in this, he shared his deep unease with other thinkers like Romain Rolland and Albert Einstein. This volume, for the first time, covers the socio-political, historical, literary, and cultural concerns relating to Tagore's efforts towards the de-colonization of the Self. The volume begins with various perspectives on Tagore's ambivalence about nationalism. It encompasses critical examinations of Tagore's literary works and other art forms, as well as adaptations of his works on film. It also reads Tagore's nationalism in a comparative mode with contemporary thinkers in India and abroad who were engaged in similar debates. Newsweek, 1988 The Standard, 1929 The Spectator, 1894 The Rail, the Body and the Pen Brian Cowlishaw, 2021-08-11

Many of the best-known British authors of the 1800s were fascinated by the science and technology of their era. Dickens included spontaneous human combustion and mesmerism, hypnotism in his plots. Mary Shelley created the immortal Dr Victor Frankenstein and his creature. H.G. Wells imagined the Time Machine, the Invisible Man, and invaders from Mars. Percy Shelley was as infamous at Oxford for his smelly experiments and for his atheism. This book of essays explores representations of technology in the work of various nineteenth-century British authors. Essays cluster around two important areas of innovation: transportation and medicine. Each essay contributor accessibly maps out the places where art and science meet, detailing how these authors both affected and reflected the technological revolutions of their time. The Congregationalist, 1921 Fourth Estate, 1895 The Law Times, 1852
