Thinking About Architecture An Introduction To Architectural Theory:

Thinking about Architecture Colin Davies, 2011-10-17 In order to understand architecture in all its cultural complexity it is necessary to grasp such basic concepts as representation form and space The aim of this book is to provide teachers students practising architects and general readers with a set of ideas that will enrich their conversation their writing and above all their thinking about architecture The book is divided into eight chapters each covering a particular aspect of architecture and introduces difficult concepts gradually Architectural theorists and philosophers are mentioned in passing and their works are listed in the bibliography but they are not the subject of the book Architecture rather than philosophy is at the centre of the picture The aim is to enable the reader to understand architecture in all its aspects rather than to learn the names of particular theorists Written in a conversational style Thinking about Architecture is an invaluable and accessible standard introduction to architectural theory An Introduction to Architectural Theory Harry Francis

Eaman,2025-04-08 Media theory has long overlooked the built environment and its communicative capacity how built structures and spaces convey meaning through material embodiment and symbolization Architecture as Communication advances the idea that built environments function as media of communication Using practice theory in conjunction with the concept of style this book is anchored in three historical determinants the quest for perfect proportion in buildings the belief in architectural determinism and the ongoing efforts within other media to influence how those who experience built environments understand them Ross Eaman explores how houses schools places of worship factories office buildings stores malls opera houses plazas and parks have meaning for people as subjective life worlds Architecture as Communication proposes media theory that articulates the social construction of meaning as a unique way of understanding the built environment one in which the users and observers of structures and spaces participate along with architects and designers Architecture according to Eaman encompasses the multiplicity of communication as human interaction preparing people for what they are about to encounter signalling how they should act and selectively enabling them to perform their expected role Using examples across many historical periods and cultures Architecture as Communication argues that we judge our built environments by the values they communicate Thinking Architecturally Paul Righini,2000 Through a critical study of issues such as order form space style place making aesthetics and architectural theory students are encouraged to think about their own creative ideas The use of analytical reasoning lateral thinking drawing and modelling is emphasised
