States, Firms, and Their Legal Fictions Melissa J. Durkee, 2024-02-28 This volume offers a new point of entry into questions about how the law conceives of states and firms Because states and firms are fictitious constructs rather than products of evolutionary biology the law dictates which acts should be attributed to each entity and by which actors Those legal decisions construct firms and states by attributing identity and consequences to them As the volume shows these legal decisions are often products of path dependence or conceptual metaphors like personhood that have expanded beyond their original uses Focusing on attribution the volume considers an array of questions about artificial entities that are usually divided into doctrinal siloes These include questions about attribution of international legal responsibility to states and state owned entities transnational attribution of liabilities to firms and attribution of identity rights to corporations Durkee highlights the artificiality of doctrines that construct firms and states and therefore their susceptibility to change ICSID Reports James Crawford, Karen Lee, Elihu Lauterpacht, 2006-12-14 Volume 10 brings the ICSID reports up to date and includes cases up to late 2005 Expropriation in Investment Treaty Arbitration Dr Cox, 2018-11-19 In recent years there has been a marked increase in the number of investors seeking compensation from states perceived to have expropriated their projects Part of the Oxford International Arbitration Series this work provides a comprehensive guide to expropriation and how it is applied in practice The author offers a detailed examination of existing case law from which common substantive principles of the international law on expropriation are drawn out Relevant international cases from the ICJ ECHR and Iran US Tribunal are considered to complement the focus on investment treaty arbitration and ICSID UNCITRAL NAFTA and ECT cases The book examines the interplay between expropriation and other standards of treaty protection such as fair and equitable treatment as well as remedies for expropriation The reader embarks on a thorough examination of expropriation in investment treaty arbitration from its evolution into an accepted principle in international law today through to current trends and a critical assessment of the relevance of expropriation in the present day Expropriation in Investment Treaty Arbitration is a useful systematic analysis of a topic that is of vital importance in arbitration practice a key resource for all practitioners in this field Schreuer's Commentary on the ICSID Convention Stephan W.
