Improving Flood Prediction Assimilating Uncertain Crowdsourced Data into Hydrologic and Hydraulic Models Maurizio Mazzoleni, 2017-03-16

In recent years the continued technological advances have led to the spread of low cost sensors and devices supporting crowdsourcing as a way to obtain observations of hydrological variables in a more distributed way than the classic static physical sensors The main advantage of using these type of sensors is that they can be used not only by technicians but also by regular citizens However due to their relatively low reliability and varying accuracy in time and space crowdsourced observations have not been widely integrated in hydrological and or hydraulic models for flood forecasting applications Instead they have generally been used to validate model results against observations in post event analyses This research aims to investigate the benefits of assimilating the crowdsourced observations coming from a distributed network of heterogeneous physical and social static and dynamic sensors within hydrological and hydraulic models in order to improve flood forecasting The results of this study demonstrate that crowdsourced observations can significantly improve flood prediction if properly integrated in hydrological and hydraulic models This study provides technological support to citizen observatories of water in which citizens not only can play an active role in information capturing evaluation and communication leading to improved model forecasts and better flood management

Chemokine Protocols Amanda E.I. Proudfoot, Timothy N.C. Wells, Christine Power, 2008-02-05 The chemokines family of small proteins are involved in numerous biological processes ranging from hematopoiesis angiogenesis and basal leukocyte trafficking to the extravasation and tissue infiltration of leukocytes in response to inflammatory agents tissue damage and bacterial or viral infection Chemokines exert their effects through a family of seven G protein coupled transmembrane receptors Worldwide interest in the chemokine field surged dramatically early in 1996 with the finding that certain chemokine receptors were the elusive coreceptors required along with CD4 for HIV infection Today though over 40 human chemokines have been described the number of chemokine receptors lags behind only 17 human chemokine receptors have been identified so far What has emerged over the years is that most chemokine receptors bind several distinct ligands and indeed the majority of chemokines are able to bind to multiple chemokine receptors explaining to some extent the apparent disparity in the numbers of chemokines and receptors. Yet in spite of the apparent redundancy in chemokine-chemokine receptor interactions it is clear that in vivo spatial-temporal and indeed cell and tissue-specific expression of both chemokines and their receptors are important factors in determining the precise nature of cellular infiltrates in physiological and pathological processes.
