Cervical Cancer Research Trends Eleanor P. Bankes, 2007 Cervical cancer is a malignancy of the cervix Worldwide it is the second most common cancer of women It may be present with vaginal bleeding but symptoms may be absent until the cancer is in advanced stages which has made cervical cancer the focus of intense screening efforts Most scientific studies point to human papillomavirus HPV infection responsible for 90 per cent of the cases of cervical cancer There are 7 most common types of HPV 16 18 31 33 42 52 and 58 Types 16 and 18 being the most common cause of the cancer Treatment is with surgery including local excision in early stages and chemotherapy and radiotherapy in advanced stages of the disease This new book presents important research in the field from around the globe Trends in Stem Cell Proliferation and Cancer Research Rodrigo R. Resende, Henning Ulrich, 2013-08-13 The book will discuss the molecular mechanisms of cancer diseases stem cell proliferation and transformation into cancer cells beyond the physiological processes that occur in normal stem cell biology Some of the key oncogenic events in cancer and their signaling pathways that regulate cell division cycle progression will be described considering prospects for using such knowledge in advanced cancer therapy Each chapter shall provide an invaluable resource for information on the most current advances in the field with discussion of controversial issues and areas of emerging importance Trends in Ovarian Cancer Research A. P. Bardos, 2004 Ovarian cancer is cancer that begins in the cells that constitute the ovaries including surface epithelial cells germ cells and the sex cord stromal cells Cancer cells that metastasize from other organ sites to the ovary most commonly breast or colon cancers are not then considered ovarian cancer According to the American Cancer Society ovarian cancer accounts for 4 percent of all cancers among women and ranks fifth as a cause of their deaths from cancer The American Cancer Society statistics for ovarian cancer estimate that there will be 25 400 new cases and 14 300 deaths in 2003 The death rate for this disease has not changed much in the last 50 years Unfortunately almost 70 percent of women with the common epithelial ovarian cancer are not diagnosed until the disease is advanced in stage i e has spread to the upper abdomen stage III or beyond stage IV The 5 year survival rate for these women is only 15 to 20 percent whereas the 5 year survival rate for stage I disease patients approaches 90 percent and for stage II disease patients approaches 70 percent Ovarian tumors are named according to the type of cells the tumor started from and whether the tumor is benign or cancerous The three main types of ovarian tumors are Epithelial Tumors Germ Cell Tumors and Stromal Tumors This new book brings together new and leading edge research from around the world Research Grants Index National Institutes of Health (U.S.). Husband and Reznick's Imaging in Oncology Janet Husband,Rodney H. Reznick,Janet E. Husband,2009-12-23 In recent years there has been recognition of the central role of imaging in the management of patients with cancer The third edition of this widely acclaimed book builds on the foundations laid down by the first edition the 1998 winner of the Royal Society s award for the Multi author Textbook of the Year and the second 2004 The core of the Research Awards Index , AHRQ Research Activities ,2004 Epidemiologic Studies in Cancer Prevention and Screening Anthony B. Miller,2012-11-30 Epidemiologic Studies in Cancer Prevention and Screening is the first comprehensive overview of the evidence base for both cancer prevention and screening This book is directed to the many professionals in government academia public health and health care who need up to date information on the potential for reducing the impact of cancer including physicians nurses epidemiologists and research scientists The main aim of the book is to provide a realistic appraisal of the evidence for both cancer prevention and cancer screening In addition the book provides an accounting of the extent programs based on available knowledge have impacted populations It does this through 1 Presentation of a rigorous and realistic evaluation of the evidence for population based interventions in prevention of and screening for cancer with particular relevance to those believed to be applicable now or on the cusp of application 2 Evaluation of the relative contributions of prevention and screening 3 Discussion of how within the health systems with which the authors are familiar prevention and screening for cancer can be enhanced Overview of the evidence base for cancer prevention and screening as demonstrated in Epidemiologic Studies in Cancer Prevention and Screening is critically important given current debates within the scientific community Of the five components of cancer control prevention early detection including screening treatment rehabilitation and palliative care prevention is regarded as the most important Yet the knowledge available to prevent many cancers is incomplete and even if we know the main causal factors for a cancer we often lack the understanding to put this knowledge into effect Further with the long natural history of most cancers it could take many years to make an appreciable impact upon the incidence of the cancer Because of these facts many have come to believe that screening has the most potential for reduction of the burden of cancer Yet through trying to apply the knowledge gained on screening for cancer the scientific community has recognized that screening can have major disadvantages and achieve little at substantial cost This reduces the resources that are potentially available both for prevention and for treatment Journal of the National Cancer Institute ,2007-12 Each issue is packed with extensive news about important cancer related science policy politics and people Plus there are editorials and reviews by experts in the field book reviews and commentary on timely topics
