

The book cover features a misty, grey landscape with a person in a dark cloak and a large feathered headdress standing on a rocky outcrop. In the distance, a dark, wolf-like creature is visible on the right. The sky is filled with many small, white birds in flight. The title and author's name are printed in a large, brown, serif font.

Theories of Affect and Concepts in Generic Skills Education Wera Grahn, Edyta Just, 2017-08-21 During the last few years the concept of generic skills and competences has become widespread across universities An introduction to generic competences is as such important because it enables redefinition of educational goals and may positively rearrange forms of interaction in classes It also indicates that education should inspire students to develop and use critical and creative forms of thinking feeling and doing On the one hand the need to promote generic skills can be seen as driven by neoliberal desire On the other however generic competences can enable students to think feel and act differently but also respect and welcome various forms of life and ways of living Responding to the growing need to reflect upon generic competences this book contributes to the various ways of conceptualising generic skills and the methods in which they might be acquired The volume engenders adventurous encounters between different theories which predominantly come from the feminist conceptual framework that result in appealing meanings of affect and concepts It also experimentally explores and discusses ways in which theories of affect and concepts may complicate understanding of generic competences and inspire generic skills oriented education Consequently this collection revitalizes the concept of generic skills but also advocates daring pedagogical practices that invigorate the meaning of and approach to teaching and learning in present landscapes of higher education

Art, Race, and Fantastic Color Change in the Victorian Novel Jessica Durgan, 2018-12-12 As a study of color in the Victorian novel this volume notices and analyzes a peculiar literary phenomenon in which Victorian authors who were also trained as artists dream up fantastically colored characters for their fiction These strange and eccentric characters include the purple madwoman Bertha Mason in Charlotte Brontë's Jane Eyre 1847 the blue gentleman Oscar Dubourg from Wilkie Collins's Poor Miss Finch 1872 the red peddler Diggory Venn in Thomas Hardy's The Return of the Native 1878 and the little yellow girls of Arthur Conan Doyle's The Yellow Face 1893 and Frances Hodgson Burnett's The Secret Garden 1911 While color has been historically viewed as suspicious and seductive in Western culture the Victorian period constitutes a significant moment in the history of color the rapid development of new color technologies and the upheavals of the first avant garde art movements result in an increase in coloring's prestige in the art academies At the same time race science appropriates color using it as a criterion for classification in the establishment of global racial hierarchies These artist authors draw on color's traditional association with constructions of otherness to consider questions of identity and difference through the imaginative possibilities of color

Once Upon a Time in Facilities Management Patricia McCarroll, John Hassard, 2024-09-23 What would the world of work look like if interpreted through the lens of the fairytale To answer this question Once Upon a Time in Facilities Management explores storied spaces and metaphorical archetypes in the study of business management and organization At its core the authors offer a diagnostic approach for the study of work organization that links management theory storytelling and the business imaginary An important empirical focus is also included that explores a business service rarely studied in the management literature Facilities Management FM a secondary service of non core and increasingly outsourced organizational functions An in depth appreciation of FM is provided that assesses the people practices and processes of the service in a study that also highlights the characteristic liminality of the sector's professional activities Emphasis is placed on illuminating the storytelling nature of the service using primarily the genre of fairytales to identify representational archetypes including queen shadow sage trickster adventurer and eternal child within FM's storied space In the process three central characters essentially modes of FM delivery are identified the professional consultant the external service provider and the in house function with these forming the structural basis of fairytales explaining the culture and symbolism of FM as a business service The authors conclude by extrapolating findings from the study to inform a discussion of the contributions of folkloric analysis to organization theory explicitly and our understanding of business and management practice more widely
