Utopian Generations The Political Horizon Of Twentieth Century Literature Translationtransnation:

Utopian Generations Nicholas Brown, 2009-01-10 Utopian Generations develops a powerful interpretive matrix for understanding world literature one that renders modernism and postcolonial African literature comprehensible in a single framework within which neither will ever look the same African literature has commonly been seen as representationally naïve vis vis modernism and canonical modernism as reactionary vis vis postcolonial literature What brings these two bodies of work together argues Nicholas Brown is their disposition toward Utopia or the horizon of a radical reconfiguration of social relations Grounded in a profound rethinking of the Hegelian Marxist tradition this fluently written book takes as its point of departure the partial displacement during the twentieth century of capitalism's internal limit classically conceived as the conflict between labor and capital onto a geographic division of labor and wealth Dispensing with whole genres of commonplace contemporary pieties Brown examines works from both sides of this division to create a dialectical mapping of different modes of Utopian aesthetic practice The theory of world literature developed in the introduction grounds the subtle and powerful readings at the heart of the book focusing on works by James Joyce Cheikh Hamidou Kane Ford Madox Ford Chinua Achebe Wyndham Lewis Ngugi wa Thiong'o and Pepetela A final chapter arguing that this literary dialectic has reached a point of exhaustion suggests that a radically reconceived notion of musical practice may be required to discern the Utopian desire immanent in the products of contemporary culture

Utopian Generations Nicholas Brown, 2005 Utopian Generations develops a powerful interpretive matrix for understanding world literature one that renders modernism and postcolonial African literature comprehensible in a single framework Grounded in profound rethinking of the Hegelian Marxist tradition this fluently written book takes as its point of departure the partial displacement during the twentieth century of capitalism's internal limit onto a geographic division of labour and wealth

The Making of Barbarians Haun Saussy, 2024-12-17 A groundbreaking account of translation and identity in the Chinese literary tradition before 1850 with important ramifications for today Debates on the canon multiculturalism and world literature often take Eurocentrism as the target of their critique But literature is a universe with many centers and one of them is China The Making of Barbarians offers an account of world literature in which China as center produces its own margins Here Sinologist and comparatist Haun Saussy investigates the meanings of literary translation adaptation and appropriation on the boundaries of China long before it came into sustained contact with the West When scholars talk about comparative literature in Asia they tend to focus on translation between European languages and Chinese Korean and Japanese as practiced since about 1900 In contrast Saussy focuses on the period before 1850 when the translation of foreign works into Chinese was rare because Chinese literary tradition overshadowed those around it The Making of Barbarians looks closely at literary works that were translated into Chinese from foreign languages or resulted from contact with alien peoples The book explores why translation was such an undervalued practice in premodern China and how this vast and prestigious culture dealt with those outside it
