Degrees of Inequality Suzanne Mettler, 2014-03-11 America s higher education system is failing its students In the space of a generation we have gone from being the best educated society in the world to one surpassed by eleven other nations in college graduation rates Higher education is evolving into a caste system with separate and unequal tiers that take in students from different socio economic backgrounds and leave them more unequal than when they first enrolled Until the 1970s the United States had a proud history of promoting higher education for its citizens The Morrill Act the G I Bill and Pell Grants enabled Americans from across the income spectrum to attend college and the nation led the world in the percentage of young adults with baccalaureate degrees Yet since 1980 progress has stalled Young adults from low to middle income families are not much more likely to graduate from college than four decades ago When less advantaged students do attend they are largely sequestered into inferior and often profit driven institutions from which many emerge without degrees and shouldering crushing levels of debt In Degrees of Inequality acclaimed political scientist Suzanne Mettler explains why the system has gone so horribly wrong and why the American Dream is increasingly out of reach for so many. In her eye opening account she illuminates how political partisanship has overshadowed America's commitment to equal access to higher education. As politicians capitulate to corporate interests, owners of for profit colleges benefit but for far too many students higher education leaves them with little besides crippling student loan debt. Meanwhile the nation's public universities have shifted the burden of rising costs onto students. In an era when a college degree is more linked than ever before to individual and societal well being these pressures conspire to make it increasingly difficult for students to stay in school long enough to graduate. By abandoning their commitment to students politicians are imperiling our highest ideals as a nation. Degrees of Inequality offers an impassioned call to reform a higher education system that has come to exacerbate rather than mitigate socioeconomic inequality in America. The University under Pressure Elizabeth Popp Berman, Catherine Paradeise, 2016-02-26 Universities are under pressure. Their resource environment is evolving. Demands for accountability have increased and demographic shifts are changing higher educational needs. This volume provides a cross national picture of how the university as an organization is reacting to, adapting to, and threatened by a period of intense pressure. Improving Measurement of Productivity in Higher Education National Research Council, Division of Behavioral and Social Sciences and Education, Board on Testing and Assessment, Committee on National Statistics, Panel on Measuring Higher Education Productivity: Conceptual Framework and Data Needs, 2013-01-18 Higher education is a linchpin of the American economy and society. Teaching and research at colleges and universities contribute significantly to the nation's economic activity both directly and through their impact on future growth. Federal and state governments support teaching and research with billions of taxpayers dollars and individuals, communities and the nation gain from the learning and innovation that occur in higher education. In the current environment of increasing tuition and shrinking public funds a sense of urgency has emerged to better track the performance of colleges and universities in the hope that their costs can be contained without compromising quality or accessibility. Improving Measurement of Productivity in Higher Education presents an analytically well defined concept of productivity in higher education and recommends empirically valid and operationally practical guidelines for measuring it. In addition to its obvious policy and research value improved measures of productivity may generate insights that potentially lead to enhanced departmental, institutional or system educational processes. Improving Measurement of Productivity in Higher Education constructs valid productivity measures to supplement the body of information used to guide resource allocation decisions at the system, state and national levels and to assist policymakers who must assess investments in higher education against other compelling demands on scarce resources. By portraying the productive process in detail this report will allow stakeholders to better understand the complexities of and potential approaches to measuring institution, system and national level performance in higher education. Politics In The American States: A Comparative Analysis Virginia Gray, Russell L. students today are financing college through debt but the burdens of debt are not equally shared The least privileged students are those most encumbered and the least able to repay All of this has implications for those who work in academia especially those who are themselves from less advantaged backgrounds Warnock argues that it is difficult to reconcile the goals of facilitating upward mobility for students from similar backgrounds while being aware that the goals of many colleges and universities stand in contrast to the recruitment and support of these students This combined with the fact that campuses are increasingly reliant on adjunct labor makes it difficult for the contemporary tenure track or tenured working class academic to reconcile his or her position in the academy
