Zooarchaeology Medieval Iberian Archaeological International:

Mediterranean Landscapes in Post Antiquity Sauro Gelichi, Lauro Olmo-Enciso, 2019-06-27 The study of landscape has in recent years been a field for considerable analytical archaeological experimentation Although the Mediterranean is the home of classicism it has seen the implementation of projects of this new kind and in regions of Spain and Italy after some delay the proliferation of landscape archaeology studies International Handbook of Underwater Archaeology Carol V.

Ruppe, Jane F. Barstad, 2013-11-11 Although underwater archaeology has assumed its rightful place as an important subdiscipline in the field the published literature has not kept pace with the rapid increase in the number of both prehistoric and historic underwater sites The editors have assembled an internationally distinguished roster of contributors to fill this gap In addition to both geographical and topical approaches the chapters also focus on technology law public and private institutional roles and goals and the research and development of future technologies and public programs Agrarian

Archaeology in Northwestern Iberia Juan Antonio Quirós Castillo, 2023-04-06 Devoted to the archaeological study of the societies and agrarian landscapes of Northwestern Iberia in the longue dur e this book brings together the results of some of the main projects carried out in recent decades from off site records providing a fresh perspective for the understanding of historical landscapes Archaeology of East Asian Shipbuilding Jun Kimura, 2016-04-12 North American Society for

The Archaeology of Peasantry in Roman Spain Jesús Bermejo Tirado, Ignasi Grau Mira, 2022-01-19 This volume aims to present an updated portrait of the Roman countryside in Roman Spain by the comparison of different theoretical orientations and methodological strategies including the discussion of textual and iconographic sources and the analysis of the faunal remains The archaeology of rural areas of the Roman world has traditionally been focused on the study of villae both as an architectural model of Roman otium and as the central core of an economic system based on the extensive agricultural exploitation of latifundia The assimilation of most rural settlements in provincial areas of the Roman Empire with the villa model implies the acceptance of specific ideas such as the generalization of the slave mode of production the rupture of the productive capacity of Late Iron Age communities or the reduction in importance of free peasant labor in the Roman economy of most rural areas However in recent decades as a consequence of the generalized extension of preventive or emergency archaeology and survey projects in most areas of the ancient territories of the Roman Empire this traditional conception of the Roman countryside articulated around monumental villae is undergoing a thorough revision New research projects are changing our current perception of the countryside of most parts of the Roman provincial world by assessing the importance of different types of rural settlements In the last years we have witnessed the publication of archaeological reports on the excavation of thousands of small rural sites farms farmsteads enclosures rural agglomerations of diverse nature etc One of the main consequences of all this research activity is a vigorous discussion of the paradigm of the slave mode of production as the basis of Roman rural economies in many provincial areas A similar change in the paradigm is taking place with some delay in the archaeology of Roman Spain After decades of preventive emergency interventions there is a considerable quantity of unpublished data on this kind of rural settlements However unlike the cases of Roman Britain or Gallia Comata no synthesis or national projects are undertaking the task of systematizing all these data With the intention of addressing this current situation the present volume discusses the results and methodological strategies of different projects studying peasant settlements in several regions of Roman Spain

Communication and Commerce Along the Western Sealandes AD 400-800 Jonathan M. Wooding,1996 This book brings together historical and archaeological evidence to critique the thesis that there was regular long distance communication and commerce along the Atlantic seaboard c 400 800 AD It pays particular attention to the evidence for direct maritime links of the continent with western Britain and Ireland New evidence most notably finds of imported ceramics from western Britain and Ireland has allowed us to go some way toward confirming the existence of such direct links and to reconstruct the routes of the voyages involved but this process has yet to produce any consensus as to the scale frequency and cultural impact of such contacts Archaeological data combined with a reconsideration of the historical sources here refutes diffusionist models and provides evidence for an episodic character and smaller scale for such long distance voyages as took place along the western sealandes in this period
