

User Story Examples with Acceptance Criteria

User Story	Acceptance Criteria
 As a customer, I want to transfer money between my accounts so that I can manage my finances easily.	• When the customer selects the Transfer option and chooses the source and destination accounts, the system should display the available balance in the source account. • The transfer amount must be less than or equal to the available balance. • When the customer confirms the transfer, the system should immediately deduct the amount from the source account and add it to the destination account. It should then display a confirmation message on the screen. • The transfer must be logged with a timestamp and a unique transaction ID.
 As a team member, I want to log my work hours on tasks so that I can track and bill my time accurately.	• The system should allow the team member to log hours worked on each task, with an option to specify the date and time period. • The logged hours must be visible to both the team member and the project manager, with the ability to edit or delete entries as needed. • The system should automatically calculate total hours worked per task and display this information in the task details. • The user should be able to export logged hours to a timesheet for billing purposes.
 As a product owner, I want to prioritize the product backlog so that the most valuable features are developed first.	• The system should allow the product owner to assign a priority level to each user story in the product backlog. • When the priority is updated, the system should automatically reorder the backlog to reflect the new priority. • The product owner should be able to filter stories by priority, status, and assigned team members. • The system should also allow the product owner to add notes or comments to each story, explaining the reasoning behind the priority level.
