World Class Performance Through Total Quality Paul. Spenley, 2012-12-06 TOTAL QUALITY MANAGEMENT TQM A COMPETITIVE EDGE In the context of the European and Western manufacturing challenge being set by the Far Eastern Machine it is of critical importance that manufacturing competitiveness is improved in Western companies The ability to export successfully is becoming even more critical to the economic well being of developed countries worldwide The Japanese domination of the motor cycle and domestic consumer markets has had a significant impact on the balance of payments in Western Europe and the USA All the signs are that Japanese companies are ready and able to enter other markets aggressively through takeovers acquisitions and off shore manufacturing facilities In Western Europe the creation of the Single Market in 1992 has provided major opportunities for companies to increase their market share Unfortunately many companies in the West have shown an inability to succeed even in their market when faced with tough well organized opposition such as that from the Far East There is very little time left for Western companies to catch up the challenge is becoming more fiercely competitive daily The time to improve competitive edge may be too late for many companies as the European frontiers are dismantled and the Japanese companies continue to build off shore plants in Europe For example it is a fact that companies are increasingly x PREFACE being forced to achieve world class manufacturing capability in order to compete and in many cases survive Value Management Roger H. Davies, 2016-02-17 Change programmes in both private and public sectors have a poor record of delivering their intended value The reasons given most often for their failure include lack of executive support or buy in from key users loose requirements definition weak programme management and plain wishful thinking They rarely include technical limitations Value Management puts forward the view that the true problem lies in failing to understand the causal links between the intended stakeholder outcomes and the actual programme outputs Repeating the pattern of failure can be avoided by asking two questions Before implementation what capabilities must a change programme deliver when and in what order so as to cause intended value against a defined purpose with speed and certainty During and after implementation what minor adjustments and or major shifts are needed to be certain that the programme remains on purpose and on value and two answers to be given Target time and align change programmes to deliver maximum intended value to stakeholders the baseline business case track and respond to changes during and beyond implementation to ensure that the programme actually delivers or exceeds intended value value realisation The authors show how by asking and answering these questions direction and delivery of any programme can be clarified and greater economic value achieved World Class Performance Throught Total Quality ,1992 Practitioner's Guide to Quality and Process Improvement A.B.
