World Economic Outlook, October 2018 International Monetary Fund. Research Dept.,2018-10-09 Global growth for 2018 19 is projected to remain steady at its 2017 level but its pace is less vigorous than projected in April and it has become less balanced Downside risks to global growth have risen in the past six months and the potential for upside surprises has receded Global growth is projected at 3 7 percent for 2018 19 0 2 percentage point lower for both years than forecast in April The downward revision reflects surprises that suppressed activity in early 2018 in some major advanced economies the negative effects of the trade measures implemented or approved between April and mid September as well as a weaker outlook for some key emerging market and developing economies arising from country specific factors tighter financial conditions geopolitical tensions and higher oil import bills The balance of risks to the global growth forecast has shifted to the downside in a context of elevated policy uncertainty Several of the downside risks highlighted in the April 2018 World Economic Outlook WEO such as rising trade barriers and a reversal of capital flows to emerging market economies with weaker fundamentals and higher political risk have become more pronounced or have partially materialized Meanwhile the potential for upside surprises has receded given the tightening of financial conditions in some parts of the world higher trade costs slow implementation of reforms recommended in the past and waning growth momentum

The State of African Cities, 2014 United Nations Publications,2015-09-10 The African continent is currently in the midst of simultaneously unfolding and highly significant demographic economic technological environmental urban and socio political transitions Africa s economic performance is promising with booming cities supporting growing middle classes and creating sizable consumer markets Despite significant overall growth the continent continues to suffer under very rapid urban growth accompanied by massive urban poverty and many other social problems These seem to indicate that the development trajectories followed by African nations since post independence may not be able to deliver on the aspirations of broad based human development and prosperity for all This report therefore argues for a bold re imagining of prevailing models in order to steer the ongoing transitions towards greater sustainability based on a thorough review of all available options That is especially the case since the already daunting urban challenges in Africa are now being exacerbated by the new vulnerabilities and threats associated with climate and environmental change
