World Inequalities In Human Development Index 1980 2012 Gaptimer Reports:

World Inequalities in Human Development Index (1980-2012) Pavle Sicherl, 2014-01-31 Would you love to learn a new way of understanding and discussing development and world inequalities in a new dynamic framework This manuscript expands your knowledge in two ways Firstly you master an innovative approach for looking at disparities over many units and over time The new time distance measure expressed in time units is easy to understand by everybody and offers a novel way to compare situations in economics politics business and statistics Secondly the empirical results for the Human Development Index over the three decades 1980 2012 give you new insights for the post 2015 agenda S time distance measure calculations based on official UNDP data estimates HDI inequalities for each of 187 countries within their peer group Telling new stories includes inequalities within EU27 BRICS countries and Gulf Coordination Council countries Potential users of this methodology and results are international and national organizations NGOs experts businesses managers educators students interest groups media and the general public at various levels There are two summary messages Firstly the new generic time distance approach which is easy to understand and to communicate offers a new view of reality that significantly complements existing mostly static measures of inequality in many fields Well being and development are multidimensional and long term phenomena people compare and assess their positions over many dimensions and over time The theoretical concept of time distance dimension of inequality and the innovative two generic statistical measures S time distance and S time step present a very useful approach to complement not replace the existing mostly static measures of inequality in many fields As Sicherl 1973 1993 proposes observed time distance is a dynamic measure of temporal disparity between the two series intuitively clear readily measurable and in transparent units It is suggested that one should complement conventional measures with horizontal measures Granger and Jeon 1997 C W J Granger and Y Jeon University of California at San Diego Secondly the time matrices presenting visualisation of the development in the analysed period 1980 2012 for the HDI and three component indices for the four human development groups for five Central European countries for six BRICS countries and for six GCC countries showed different ordering of the level and the dynamics of the three HDI component indices The statistical results indicated that for the HDI and also for life expectancy the static differences in percentage terms in many cases appear to be small while the time distance dimension gives a very different perception of the magnitude of the gap For instance the level of life expectancy in China in 2012 is less than 10% lower than in Sweden the time distance amounts to 48 years as the level of China in 2012 was already achieved in Sweden in 1964 This is an additional dimension to assess the reality by applying the novel statistical methodology showing that disparities are very persuasive and a long standing phenomenon These additional insights have also a transparent matter of fact message to politicians and the international community about the degree of urgency to tackle wide inequalities between and within countries in formulating and deciding on the post 2015 agenda European Union at a

Glance Pavle Sicherl, 2014-05-09 EUROPEAN UNION AT A GLANCE published on Europa Day 2014 presents an easily understandable overview of 30 selected indicators over 28 EU countries in the time perspective being probably the most condensed summary picture of disparities and dynamics in the EU over many domains over time. It features innovative table graphs for visual presentation of the 30 selected indicators over 28 countries in time on the one hand and selection of indicators from many domains in the spirit of Beyond GDP initiatives on the other from databases of many Eurostat indicators systems. The 30 time matrices give rich food for thought and imaginative readers can find numerous comparisons and stories in the material. It is very useful for discussion of the situation in the EU in light of the forthcoming new European Commission and European Parliament and at the occasion of the 10th Anniversary of the largest EU expansion in 2004. An important point relates to the multidimensional nature of development and well being especially in relation to the effects of the world financial crisis. Media and official organizations focus mostly on discussion of GDP growth rate; this can understate the severity of the crisis. Other domains show a more difficult situation: employment rate fell in 20 EU countries in all 28 EU countries without exception; share of gross investment in GDP decreased; risk of poverty as percent of total population increased in 24 EU countries; income distribution worsened as Gini coefficient and income quartile share ratio increased in 25 EU countries; healthy life years at birth decreased for males and females in 15 EU countries. Please consult S time matrices for indicators 5, 7, 17, 19, 20, 22, and 23. Time and money are two most important comparators in modern society. Time distance is an innovative approach for looking at time series data. Expressed in time units, the approach is easy to understand and provides a useful complement to existing methods. The time distance approach compares time series in the horizontal dimension, i.e. for a given level of the variable, based on two novel generic statistical measures: S time distance and S time step. These measures can be derived also from a time matrix that summarises information and that provides a first level visualization tool. It is this innovative time matrix presentation that enables condensed summary visual presentation over many countries and over time. Time Matrix Calculator software enables to calculate time matrix for your own data. This Gaptimer Report No 3 proceeds two earlier studies using the time distance methodology at the world level: World Inequalities in Human Development Index 1980-2012 (Gaptimer Reports Volume 1) and or for gender disparity: How Much Longer Live Women Than Men Around the Globe (Astonishing Differences between Countries, Gaptimer Reports Volume 2) that are available on Amazon. Human Development Report 2023/2024 United Nations Development Programme, 2024-03-13. Today collective action on challenges ranging from climate change mitigation to peace and security is frustratingly slow or stymied altogether. Lack of trust and polarization both associated with insecurity exacerbate the gridlock. Shared interlinked global challenges like the pandemic and its recovery are outpacing our willingness and our institutions' capacities to respond to them. Why despite all our riches and technologies are we so stuck? How do we get unstuck? Is it possible to mobilize action to address globally shared challenges in a world that is intensively polarized? The 2023-2024 Human Development Report explores these issues and offers a platform for strategic discussion on how to move beyond narrow zero sum thinking and support cooperation even as we have diverging interests and views The e book for this publication has been converted into an accessible format for the visually impaired and people with print reading disabilities It is fully compatible with leading screen reader technologies such as JAWS and NVDA Human Development Report 1992 United Nations Development

Programme,1992 Since its headline making debut the Human Development Report has become an essential resource for development specialists economists and political scientists around the world The 1992 Report not only updates the findings of the earlier volumes but also examines the international dimensions of human development showing how global economic growth and the expansion of the world economy have filtered down to poor economies and poor people in developing countries In addition it examines tcpks between human development and international markets for products capital and labor addresses issues of global governance and presents updated human development indicators for more than 160 countries

A Means to Closing Gaps Ahmet Halis Akder,1994 Human Development Report 1990 United Nations Development Programme,1990 First in a series of annual reports this volume is about people and about how development enlarges their choices access to income long life knowledge political freedom personal security community participation and guaranteed human rights It measures human development not by the yardstick of income alone but by the human development index reflecting life expectancy literacy and command over resources to enjoy a decent standard of living The report analyzes the record of human development for the last three decades and the experience of 14 countries in managing economic growth and human development The volume concludes with human development indicators for more than 130 countries both developing and developed ISBN 0 19 306481 X pbk 15 95
