Recentring Africa in International Relations Marta Iñiguez de Heredia, Zubairu Wai, 2018-02-22 This innovative book responds to an existing demand for taking Africa out of a place of exception and marginality and placing it at the center of international relations and world politics Bringing together a number of scholars from various disciplinary backgrounds to stage a critical intervention into the problematic ways Africa is accounted for in the dominant discourses of international relations and global politics it challenges the structural and epistemic biases of IR that render the contributions of the continent invisible and situates the continent as a global region that exists beyond notions of lack disorder and failure Through these interventions the volume contributes to a rethinking of IR and the conditions of possibility for imagining a world otherwise beyond frames that fetishize Africa paradoxically as transparent and invisible

Digital Investigative Journalism Oliver Hahn, Florian Stalph, 2018-12-28 In the post digital era investigative journalism around the world faces a revolutionary shift in the way information is gathered and interpreted. Reporters in the field are confronted with data sources, new logics of information dissemination and a flood of disinformation. Investigative journalists are working with programmers, designers and scientists to develop innovative tools and hands-on approaches that assist them in disclosing the misuse of power and uncovering injustice. This volume provides an overview of the most sophisticated techniques of digital investigative journalism: data and computational journalism which investigates stories hidden in numbers; immersive journalism which digs into virtual reality; drone journalism which conquers hitherto inaccessible territories; visual and interactive journalism which reforms storytelling with images and audience perspectives; and digital forensics and visual analytics which help to authenticate digital content and identify sources in order to detect manipulation. All these techniques are discussed against the backdrop of international political scenarios and globally networked societies. This edited volume, written by renowned international media practitioners and scholars, is full of illuminating insights into digital investigative journalism and addresses professional journalists, journalism researchers and students.

Screening Protest Alexa Robertson, 2018-07-11. Screening Protest brings together a range of scholarly perspectives on the study of protest mediations on television and in film. Arguing that the screen is a fruitful if overlooked analytical focus, the book explores how visual narratives of protest wander across borders, territorial, temporal and generic. Chapters compare coverage of major protests in recent history by global news channels like Al Jazeera, English, BBC, World, CNN International and RT. They consider how geopolitical agendas, newsroom culture and the ubiquity of eyewitness footage shape the narration of events such as the Umbrella Revolution in Hong Kong, anti-austerity protests in Greece, pro-EU mobilizations in the Ukraine and clashes in Ferguson. A focus on narrative allows authors to compare such news stories with popular cultural depictions of the protester in films and television series such as The Hunger Games, Robin Hood and Suffragette. Although focussed on the screen, the scope of the book is broad, given its exploration of images distributed worldwide. Written with both scholars and students in mind, Screening Protest will interest researchers in political science, sociology, media and film studies as well as the general reader interested in current affairs.

For over half a century, television has been the most central medium in Western democracies, the political, social and cultural centrepiece of the public sphere. Television has therefore rarely been studied in isolation from its socio-cultural and political context; there is always something important at stake when the forms and functions of television are on the agenda. The digitisation of television concerns the production, contents, distribution and reception of the medium, but also its position in the overall, largely digitised media system and public sphere where the internet plays a decisive role. The articles in this comprehensive collection are written by some of the world's most prominent scholars in the field of media communication and cultural studies, including critical film and television studies. Relocating Television offers readers an insight into studying television alongside the internet, participatory media and other technocultural phenomena such as DVDs user generated content and everyday digital media production It also focuses on more specific programmes and phenomena including The Wire MSN amateur footage in TV news Bollywoodization of TV news YouTube fan sites tied to e g Grey s Anatomy and X Factor Relocating Television will be highly beneficial to both students and academics across a wide range of undergraduate and postgraduate courses including media communication and cultural studies and television and film studies
